2) Two additional courses from any of the above groups (ARAB and ARIS subject areas), for a total of 6 credits.

3) Four courses or 12 additional related credits are required in 2000-, 3000- and 4000-level from programs other than Arabic and Islamic Civilizations. Related courses can belong to many subject areas and must always be approved by the advisor. These may include:
   - Courses in any modern or classical language.
   - Any English, Linguistics, or Philosophy course.
   - Any Communication Sciences course that is directly related to second language acquisition or the Arab World
   - Any History, Political Science, Art History, Anthropology, Sociology, Economics, or Geography course that deals with Islamic culture or the Arab world.

Enrollment in a study abroad program in an Arabic-speaking country is recommended but not mandatory for Arabic and Islamic Civilizations majors. With advisor’s consent, any of the above courses may be replaced by an appropriate ARAB 3293 course from study abroad programs. Up to 12 credits taken in study abroad programs may count toward the major. Students can enroll in either UConn-sponsored or non-UConn-sponsored programs. In either case, students must consult with the advisor to determine which courses will receive credit.

ARIS 3000 is mandatory for all Arabic and Civilizations major, unless comparable proficiency is Classical Arabic is demonstrated and only with advisor’s approval.
To satisfy the Information Literacy Competency and Writing in the major requirements, all students must take ARAB 3600W.

Africana Studies Major Plan of Study 2017

Course Information

Course descriptions

Taking as its central mission the study of peoples of African descent on the continent and in the diaspora, the Africana Studies major seeks a nuanced and interdisciplinary understanding of the human experience. The Africana Studies major does so through the humanities, arts, and social sciences, with particular emphasis on continuities and discontinuities across geography and time. Its broad educational objectives are to engender among all students an intellectual appreciation of black lives and their saliency for all human experience; to deepen students’ critical analytic skills; and to value social equality, democracy, and humanitarianism. The Africana Studies major strives to provide students with substantive knowledge of the black world and its linkages to national as well as pre-, sub-, supra-, and transnational processes. Students play an active role in the Africana Studies Institute’s mission to facilitate respect and positive intersocial relationships within the university community. Completion of the B.A. in Africana Studies prepares the student for work in government, community agencies, international organizations, business, journalism and communications, or for graduate studies that lead to careers in research and teaching.
Requirements

To satisfy the Africana Studies major, the student must complete twenty-seven credits in AFRA courses, with at least one three-credit course in each of groups A, B, and C. Students must also complete 12 credits of related courses from Group D. Variable Content courses may be applied to distribution groups determined by course content and advisor consent. All majors must take AFRA 2211 and AFRA 4994W; the latter is generally taken senior year.

HIST 2810. Crime, Policing, and Punishment in the United States
Three credits.
A survey of political, legal, and cultural development of the American criminal justice system and its social impact from the early republic to the present.

2018-62 Structural Biology and Biophysics Revise major

Current Copy:

Structural Biology and Biophysics
This B.S. program emphasizes the physical and chemical foundations of molecular biology.
The following courses at the 1000-level are prerequisites for the major:
BIOL 1107
CHEM 1127Q and 1128Q or CHEM 1147Q and 1148Q or CHEM 1124Q, 1125Q and 1126Q
MATH 1131Q and 1132Q
PHYS 1401Q and 1402Q or PHYS 1601Q and 1602Q or PHYS 1201Q and 1202Q

A total of 36 credits at the 2000-level or above from the following courses are required for the major:
Required courses
- MATH 2110Q or 2130Q; MATH 2410Q or 2420Q;
- CHEM 2443 and 2444; CHEM 3563 and 3564; CHEM 2445 or 3565W
- MCB 3010 or 2000 and 4026W; MCB 4008 or 5038 or Special Topics: MCB 3895 (with Biophysics Program approval); MCB 4009
Recommended courses
- MCB 2210, 2410, 3413, 2610, 3201, 3412, 3421, 3617, 3899, 4026W, 4997W, 5035;
- CHEM 3332, 4551;
- CSE 1100;
- MATH 3210

To satisfy the writing in the major and information literacy competency requirements, all students must take one of the following courses: MCB 3841W, 4026W, 4997W; CHEM 3170W, 4196W; or any W course approved for this major.

2018-63 COMM Revise major

Current Copy:
The Department of Communication offers an undergraduate major in Communication. The Communication major is designed to educate students about the social science of communication and introduce them to careers involving communication.

The major examines communication at multiple levels of society and in different settings, including interpersonal, nonverbal, organizational, intercultural, and international communication, as well as through different media, such as mass media, social media, and other new communication technologies. Training in the basic theories, principles, best practices, and current research methods of communication can qualify students for a variety of communications and media industry positions in business, advertising, public relations, marketing, digital media production, government/politics, and promotion.

The Communication Department offers applied and theory courses:
- Applied courses emphasize the development of professional skills. Applied courses include the following: COMM 2100, 2940, 4800, 4820, 4940, 4991, and 4992. Applied courses are optional, although they are highly recommended for a variety of career paths.
- Theory courses provide the foundational concepts and principles for the study of communication. A strong theoretical base prepares students to adapt to future changes in the communication landscape. Theory courses constitute the remaining COMM courses at the 2000 level or above, including the Core courses and COMM 3000Q.

A major in Communication requires completion of the following:
1. Introductory courses: COMM 1000, 1100, and 1300. Students must have a grade of “C” or better in COMM 1000. Students in the Communication major should complete these courses by the end of sophomore year, if possible.
2. Total credits of upper division communication courses: Students must complete a minimum of 24 credits in Communication at the 2000 level or above (typically eight COMM courses). Note that many students take more than the minimum of 24 credits in communication, which may consist of additional theory and/or applied classes.
3. Research methods: COMM 3000Q. Students double majoring in Psychological Sciences and Communication may substitute PSYC 2100WQ for COMM 3000Q, but will need to complete a third elective course in Communication to meet the minimum of 24 credits of upper-level Communication courses required for the major (see number 7).
4. Writing-intensive course: At least one W course in the major.
5. Core courses: At least two of the following Core courses: COMM 3100, 3200, 3300.
6. Theory courses: At least two additional theory courses. If students take a third core communication course, it will count toward this requirement. (Applied courses do not count toward this requirement.)
7. Electives: Two more applied or theory courses at a minimum, in order to complete the minimum of 24 credits in communication.
8. Related Group Requirement: Students must complete an additional 12 credits of coursework outside of Communication at the 2000 level or above. The department maintains a list of courses pre-approved as satisfying the related requirement (see the department website). Courses that do not appear on the list must be approved by a Communication advisor.

Internship
All students are encouraged to do at least one internship (COMM 4991). Internships can be taken during the academic year or summer. Students must have completed 12 credits in Communication courses at the 2000 level or above to be eligible to register for the course and receive internship credit. An internship taken for three credits counts as one applied class.

Undergraduate Research
The Department encourages students to participate in its research activities, such as the research practicum (COMM 4992).

Information Literacy
To satisfy the information literacy competency, all students must pass COMM 1000, 1100, and 3000Q. Other courses that will further enhance competency in information literacy include COMM 1300, 3100, 3103, 3200, 3300, 3321, 3400, 3450, 3600, 4089, 4100, 4120, 4220W, 4230, 4320, 4330, 4410W, 4450W, 4451W, 4460, 4500, and 4620.

Writing courses
To satisfy the writing in the major requirement, students must pass at least one course from COMM 2310W, 4220W, 4410W, 4450W, 4451W, 4660W, 4930W, 4996W, or any 2000-level or above W course approved for this major. For students interested in media and public relations careers, journalism courses are recommended for additional writing competency.

Minor in Communication
A minor in Communication is described in the Minors section.

Double majors and dual/multiple degrees
Students are encouraged to meet with a Communication advisor to discuss ways to integrate a major in Communication with other majors and degrees.

2018-71 ILCS Revise major

Current Copy:

This major focuses on Italian literary studies but also allows students to take advanced coursework in Italian language, communication, and cultural studies. (All 3000-level coursework on Italian cinema may also be counted towards the minor in Film Studies). Italian courses comprise two main groups:

Group 1 (Literature)
ILCS 3237, 3245, 3246, 3247, 3250, 3251, 3253, 3254, 3255W, 3256, 3261, 3262, 3293, 3295, 3298, 4279.

Group 2 (Language, Communication, and Culture)
ILCS 3239, 3240, 3255W, 3258W, 3259, 3260W, 3270, 3293, 3295, 3298, 4279.

For the major in Italian, students must take 24 credits of ILCS courses at the 2000 level or above and according to the following guidelines:

A. At least one composition course: ILCS 3239 or 3240 or 3293.
B. One introductory or literary survey course: ILCS 3245, 3246, 3247, 3250, 3251, 3256, 3261, 3262, 3293, 3295, 3298.
C. Six additional courses taken from Groups 1 or 2 (which are not used to satisfy requirements A or B). No more than four of these six courses may be taken from the same group.
D. All majors must take one W course as part of the 24 required Italian credits. A second W course may be counted toward the major with the consent of the advisor. (One W course taken outside of ILCS is also mandatory for all majors, as per UConn’s university-wide W course requirements.)

E. 12 additional related credits are required in 2000-, 3000- and 4000-level related courses from programs other than Italian. These may include:
   - Courses in any modern or classical language.
   - Any English, Linguistics, or Philosophy course.
   - Any Communication Sciences course that is directly related to second language acquisition or the Italian/Italian-American communities.
   - Any History, Political Science, Art History, Anthropology, Sociology, Economics, or Geography course that deals with Italy, Italians, or Italian-Americans.
   - Any course that does not meet these specific requirements should be approved by the advisor.

F. Education Abroad in Italy: Students are strongly encouraged to participate in a variety of UConn-sponsored Education Abroad programs (and also have the option of enrolling in non-sponsored programs). In either case, students should consult with the ILCS faculty to determine which courses will receive credits. Students who enroll in study abroad programs not sponsored by UConn do not necessarily receive UConn credits for their coursework.

In addition, the following rules apply:

- A minimum of 12 of the major credits must consist of Italian courses taken in residence.
- Up to 12 credits may be met by ILCS 3293, with the consent of the advisor. Only 6 may be transfer credits.
- UConn’s Early College Experience courses may be counted towards the major.
- A single course cannot satisfy more than one requirement.

To satisfy the writing in the major and information literacy competencies, students must complete ILCS 3255W, 3258W, or 3460W.

For the minor in Italian, students must take 18 credits of ILCS courses at the 2000 level or above and according to the following guidelines:

- At least one composition course: ILCS 3239 or 3240 or 3293.
- One introductory or literary survey course: ILCS 3245, 3246, 3247, 3250, 3251, 3256, 3261, 3262, 3293, 3295, 3298.
• Four courses taken from Groups 1 or 2 (which are not used to satisfy requirements A or B). No more than three of these four courses may be taken from the same group:
• Only one W course may be counted as part of the 18 required Italian credits for the minor.
• Education Abroad in Italy: Students are strongly encouraged to participate in a variety of UConn-sponsored Education Abroad programs (and also have the option of enrolling in non-sponsored programs). In either case, students should consult with the ILCS faculty to determine which courses will receive credits. Students who enroll in study abroad programs not sponsored by UConn do not necessarily receive UConn credits for their coursework.

In addition, the following rules apply:

• Up to 6 credits may be met by ILCS 3293, with the consent of the advisor.
• UConn’s Early College Experience courses may be counted towards the minor.

A single course cannot satisfy more than one requirement.

The minor is offered by the Literatures, Cultures and Languages Department.

Proposed Copy:

This minor focuses on Italian literary studies but also allows students to take advanced coursework in Italian language, communication, and cultural studies. (All 3000-level coursework on Italian cinema may also be counted towards the minor in Film Studies).

Italian courses comprise two main groups:

Group 1 (Literature)

ILCS 3237, 3245, 3246, 3247, 3250, 3251, 3253, 3254, 3255W, 3256, 3261, 3262, 3293, 3295, 3298, 4279.

Group 2 (Language, Communication, and Culture)

ILCS 3239, 3240, 3255W, 3258W, 3259, 3260W, 3270, 3291, 3293, 3295, 3298, 4279.

For the minor in Italian, students must take 18 credits of ILCS courses at the 2000 level or above and according to the following guidelines:

• At least one composition course: ILCS 3239 or 3240 or 3293.
• One introductory or literary survey course: ILCS 3245, 3246, 3247, 3250, 3251, 3256, 3261, 3262, 3293, 3295, 3298.

The minor is offered by the Literatures, Cultures and Languages Department.

2018-73 SOCI Revise major

Current Copy:

Sociology is an analytic discipline concerned with understanding people as creators of, and participants in, society. The field is broadly concerned with the study of modern society and its social organizations, institutions, groups, and social roles. Sociologists study social influences on human behavior, such as sexuality, ethnic identity, and religious belief, and how individuals become members of families and communities. The field is also concerned with social problems, especially all forms of prejudice, discrimination, and inequality, and with poverty, crime, violence, and the threatened environment. Sociologists emphasize sources of social problems in the organization of society, public policies for their alleviation, and today’s questions of social justice. Finally, they study how individuals, both alone and working in groups, can change the society in which they live. A major in sociology opens many doors for careers and is excellent background for advanced training in a variety of other fields.

Three specific courses are required of all majors: SOCI 3201, 3211Q, 3251. (Note: Students must take SOCI 1001, 1251, 1501, or 1701 prior to taking SOCI 3201, 3211Q, and 3251.)

Passing SOCI 3201 satisfies the information literacy competency. The writing in the major requirement can be satisfied by passing any 2000 or 3000-level W course in Sociology.

Twelve additional credits (usually four courses) must be taken from any 2000-level or above courses offered by the department, including those listed above. (Note: No more than three credits of SOCI 3990 can apply to the major).

A minor in Sociology is described in the Minors section.

2018-74    WGSS    Revise minor

Current Copy:

Fifteen hours of course work in Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies courses or cross referenced courses, of which one course may be at the 1000 level.

Not more than two courses may be counted toward both the minor and the major.

Not more than six credits for the Internship Program may be applied to the minor.

The minor is offered by the Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Program.

Proposed Copy:

The Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Program is a flexible interdisciplinary academic program devoted to pursuit of knowledge concerning women and the critical analysis of the production of gender and sexuality within transnational and cross-cultural contexts. Combining the methods and insights of traditional academic disciplines with the special insights of feminist studies, gender studies, and sexuality studies, our courses focus on understanding the origins of and changes in diverse cultural and social arrangements.

Students seeking a minor in Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies must complete eighteen credits of course work, at least fifteen of which must be at the 2000 level or higher, in WGSS courses, those cross listed with WGSS, and/or courses approved by the director of WGSS.

Not more than two courses may be counted toward both the minor and the major.

Not more than six credits for the Internship Program may be applied to the minor.

2018-78 EVST Revise major

Current Copy:

Environmental Studies
The Environmental Studies major is an interdisciplinary program designed to provide students with the knowledge, skills, and perspectives needed to understand the interactions between human society and the environment. Understanding the ethical and cultural dimensions of our relationship with the environment, as well as the challenges of protecting it, requires insights from multiple perspectives, including the humanities, the social sciences, and the natural sciences. Core courses in the major ensure familiarity with basic principles from these three areas. With this shared core of knowledge, majors will focus their studies on an area of special interest, taking electives and related courses that allow greater specialization. Among the many possibilities are environmental sustainability, issues concerning public policy and environmental justice, and the literary and philosophical legacy of human encounters with the non-human world. A capstone course will allow each student to research a distinct perspective on a contemporary environmental issue. A major in Environmental Studies might lead to a career in a variety of fields, including public policy, environmental education, ecotourism, marketing or consulting, journalism, or advocacy.

The major leads to a Bachelor of Arts degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS) or the College of Agriculture, Health and Natural Resources (CANR). The student’s choice of colleges should be made in consultation with faculty and advisors based upon the student’s interests and career goals.

Requirements:

Introductory Courses. All majors must take four introductory courses:

- EVST 1000
- NRE 1000, GEOG 2300, GSCI 1050 or GSCI 1051
- BIOL 1102 or, for those seeking a more advanced background, BIOL 1108
- STATS 1000Q or STATS 1100Q or equivalent

Core Courses (18 credits). All majors must take 2 of the following courses from each core. Students cannot apply more than one course per department to count within a particular core. Additional core courses taken in the same department can be applied to the additional major requirements beyond the core requirements.

Humanities Core
- PHIL 3216/W; GERM 2400; HIST 3540 or HIST 3542 or HIST 2210; ENGL 3240 or ENGL 3635 or ENGL 3715 or JOUR 3046

Social Sciences Core
- ARE 3434 or ARE 4462 or ECON 3466; GEOG 2400; NRE 3000: NRE 3245; POLS/EVST 3412; SOCI 2701 or SOCI 2709W

Natural Science Core
- EEB 2208, GEOG 3400, AH 3175, GSCI 3010; NRE 4170

EVST 4000W:

Capstone Research Project (3 credits). All majors must complete a capstone research project, which fulfills the Writing in the Major and the Information Literacy requirements for the major.

Additional requirements for the major

In addition, environmental studies majors in CLAS must take 9 credits of electives at the 2000 level or above, plus an additional 12 credits of related courses, approved by the student’s advisor. These courses must be designed to form a coherent set of additional courses that will provide the student with a focus or additional depth in an area of interest related to the major. They must be chosen in consultation with the student’s faculty advisor and be approved by the advisor. Courses listed above that are not used to meet the core requirements may be used to meet this requirement.

Total Credits (2000-level or above)

30, plus 12 credits of related courses.

Other areas of recommended preparation (not required)

- Physical Science: CHEM 1122, 1127Q; PHYS 1030Q/1035Q.
- Earth Science: GSCI/GEOG 1070; MARN 1002/1003
- Economics: ARE 1110, 1150; ECON 1179, 1200 1201.

Note: A B.A. in Environmental Studies can also be earned through the College of Agriculture, Health and Natural Resources. For a complete description of the major in that college, refer to the Environmental Studies description in the “College of Agriculture, Health and Natural Resources” section of this Catalog.

2018-42 AMST Revise major

Current Catalog Copy:

The American Studies Program at the University of Connecticut provides students with the opportunity to gain a critical understanding of the American experience while allowing individual students to define what aspects of that experience they would like to explore. Although our required courses focus largely on the United States, the field is now understood as comprising the study of issues and subjects from throughout the Western Hemisphere.

Among the goals of the American Studies curriculum is to promote an awareness of complex cultural, political, and economic structures at the root of the social organizations that have existed throughout the history of what has come to be known as the “New World.” Other areas of concentration may include, for example, the ways in which literary, musical, and visual artists have articulated cultural concerns, our changing understandings of the geography and ecology of the Western Hemisphere, or issues of cultural and ethnic diversity.

Prerequisite
AMST 1201

Core Courses
15 credits (One course from 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 below.):

1. One course from the following: AFRA/HIST 3564; AFRA/HIST/HRTS 3563; HIST 3502, 3504, 3510, 3516; HIST/WGSS 3561, 3562.
2. ENGL 2201 or 2203
3. POLS 2607 or 3602 or 3802 or 3817 or ECON 2102
4. One 2000-level or above course that deals with Latin America, Canada, or the Caribbean.
5. AMST/ENGL 3265W: Seminar in American Studies: 3 Credits (W). This seminar will provide an in-depth study of a historical period, event, or cultural movement from an interdisciplinary perspective. Students will produce a substantial essay on a topic approved by the instructor.

Track Requirement (Nine credits)
Students must choose a “Track” from the four American Studies tracks. They must take three 2000-level or above courses from within this track.

Track I: History, Culture, and Society
AFRA/ANTH 3152; AFRA/HDFS/WGSS 3042; ANTH 3026, 3027, 3902, 3904; ANTH 3041/LLAS 3241; AASI 3578/HIST 3530; HDFS 2001, HDFS 3442/LLAS 3250; HDFS 3240/SOCI 3459; HIST 3101W, 3502, 3504, 3510, 3520, 3522, 3540, 3542, 3551, 3554, 3555; 3570; HIST/AFRA 3564; HIST/AHRA/HRTS 3563; HIST/LLAS 3660W; HIST/URBN 3541; HIST/WGSS 3561, 3562; SOCI 2651, 3221, 3501, 3601, 3825; WGSS 2267, 3264, 3268

Track II: Literature and the Arts
AFRA/DRAM 3131; ARTH 3440, 3450; DRAM 4151; ENGL 2201, 2203, 2214, 3207/W, 3210, 3212, 3218, 3240, 3801W, 3803W
Track III: Political Science, Economics, and the Law

Track IV: The Americas

ANTH 3021, 3029, 3042; ARTH 3630, 3645; GEOG 4710; HIST 3607, 3608W, 3609, 3610, 3620, 3635, 3640, 3643; LLAS 3575, 4994W; POLS 3235; SPAN 3201, 3204, 3233, 3234, 3260, 3265, 3266

A number of these courses are cross-listed in the catalog, but in most cases they appear on this list only once. Many are offered as “W” courses, and some may have departmental prerequisites. Other courses, such as “Special Topics” courses, may be used to fulfill American Studies requirements with the approval of the Director of American Studies. (If possible, students should seek such permission before taking the course.) All courses must be taken for three credits.

The Core Courses may not be used to fulfill the 9-credit track requirement. A second core course from the same group, however, may be so used.

AMST/ENGL 3265W satisfies the Information Literacy Competency and Writing in the Major requirements.

Related Courses

12 Credits. Students will take four related courses. The approval of these courses as germane to the American Studies major will be left to the discretion of the advisor.

A minor in American Studies is described in the “Minors” section.

Proposed Catalog Copy:

The American Studies Program at the University of Connecticut provides students with the opportunity to gain a critical understanding of the American experience while allowing individual students to define what aspects of that experience they would like to explore. Although our required courses focus largely on the United States, the field also studies the United States in a global context by examining how other cultures have shaped this country and how this country has influenced the world.

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS:

(a) Total Credits for the Major: 27 (9 courses, not including ‘Related Coursework’) In fulfilling the Course Requirements below, a single course can be ‘double-dipped’ to fulfill 2 areas at once (but not triple-dipped). NOTE: Students who double-dip must reach their 27 credits for the major by taking any of the classes listed in the Course Requirements below.

(b) General Distribution Requirement I. In fulfilling the requirements for the American Studies degree, students must take 4 AMST-designated courses (AMST 1201 and AMST 3265 count toward this total)

(c) General Distribution requirement II. In fulfilling the requirements for the American Studies degree, students must take courses listed in 3 different departments, not including AMST. Courses cross-listed with AMST may count for this requirement, however (For example, AMST/ARTH 3440 counts as an Art History course).
COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

With the permission of the Director of American Studies, a student may also satisfy these requirements with a course not listed here.

(1) Intro Course: AMST 1201

(2) American Studies Methods Requirement: AMST 3265W

(3) Space, Place, Land, and Landscape (one of the following): AMST/ARTH 3440; AMST/ENGL/HIST 2207; AMST/ENGL 2276W; AMST/HIST 3502; AMST/HIST 3542; AMST/LLAS 3721/POLS 3824; AMST/URBN 2400; ANTH 3904; ENGL 3240; HIST 3520; HIST 3522; HIST 3540; HIST 3541/W; HIST 3542; HIST 3875/AASI 3874/LLAS 3875;

Related Coursework:
Four courses related to American Studies, approved by the advisor on the final plan of study. Courses from the American Studies Course Requirements list can also be used to satisfy Related Coursework, so long as they have not been used to satisfy other requirements, and so long as they do not have an AMST designation.

2018-43 AMST Revise minor

Current Copy:

This minor promotes an interdisciplinary understanding of the complex economic, political, and cultural structures at the root of the societies of the Western Hemisphere. Our studies range from the first immigrations across the land bridge from Siberia, to the colonization of the Americas by Europeans, to the present day. Students may also examine such issues as ethnicity, gender relations, and environmental awareness, and discuss how literary and visual artists have articulated contemporary cultural concerns. Students must complete fifteen credits, including:

- AMST 1201;
- An additional three credits of AMST coursework;
- Nine credits taken from any of the tracks listed in the American Studies major and/or courses approved by the director of American Studies.

Courses used to fulfill the student’s major field requirements and their related coursework for the major may also be used to fulfill the American Studies minor. To ensure focus, students must provide a brief rationale for their track and course choices.

Proposed Copy:

This minor promotes an interdisciplinary understanding of the complex economic, political, and cultural structures of the United States and its place in the world. Our studies range from the first immigrations across the land bridge from Siberia, to the colonization of the Americas by Europeans, to the present day. Students may also examine such issues as ethnicity, gender relations, and environmental awareness, and discuss how literary and visual artists have articulated contemporary cultural concerns.

Students must complete fifteen credits, including:

- AMST 1201;
- Six credits of courses with an AMST designation, at the 2000 level or above;
- Nine credits taken from any of the tracks listed in the American Studies major and/or courses approved by the director of American Studies;
- Nine credits taken from any of the courses listed under “Course Requirements” in the American Studies major and/or courses approved by the director of American Studies.

Courses used to fulfill the student’s major field requirements and their related coursework for the major may also be used to fulfill the American Studies minor. To ensure focus, students must provide a brief rationale for their course choices.

COURSE DETAILS

| Provide existing title and complete course catalog copy | 3320. Ancient Greece (Also offered as CAMS 3254.) Three credits. Caner The history of Greece from Minoan and Mycenaean times into the Hellenistic period with special emphasis on the Fifth Century and the Golden Age of Athens. |
| Provide proposed title and complete course catalog copy | 3320. Ancient Greece: Troy to Sparta (Also offered as CAMS 3320) Three credits. Recommended Preparation: HIST 2020. McAlhany The history of Greece from Minoan and Mycenaean times until the Hellenistic Period and Alexander the Great, with special emphasis on the Fifth Century and the "Golden Age" of Athens. |
| Reason for the course action | Currently, HIST 3320: Ancient Greece is taught much like a 1000- or 2000-level survey course, with an overlap in content with CAMS 3246: The Hellenistic World. The change will, in effect, allow the Ancient Greece to be split in two, with CAMS 3246: The Hellenistic World (taught by Sara Johnson) serving as the other half. The change will also allow for the material to be covered in a depth appropriate for a 3000-level course. |
| Specify effect on other departments and overlap with existing courses | As mentioned above, this change removes the overlap with CAMS 3246: The Hellenistic World. |
| Please provide a brief description of course goals and learning objectives | Students will learn the political and intellectual history of ancient Greece from Mycenaean era and Trojan War until the end of the "classical" era with the rise of Alexander the Great, with special emphasis on the regional diversity of the ancient Mediterranean, and also develop a critical understanding of the historiography of the period through both contemporary and later authors. |
| Describe course assessments | Daily quizzes for course content, bi-weekly short (750 words) writing assignments, and cumulative final exam. Readings from primary texts of contemporary historians (Herodotus, Thucydides) and other primary sources (Homer, Hesiod, Sappho, Pindar, Solon), later ancient historical texts (Plutarch's Lives), and modern historians (Osborne, Hornblower). |

Requirements & Grading

Quizzes
30%
At the beginning of every class there will be brief multiple-choice quiz based on the readings for that day.

Class Participation
25%
You are expected to come to class prepared to take an active role in class discussion, which includes asking questions.
Writing Assignments 30%
Over the course of the semester, you will write 5 short papers (750 words max.) on specific questions. You will be graded on how well you build your argument with specific evidence drawn from the readings.

Final Exam 15%
We will discuss the format a few weeks before the end of the semester, but you should think of coming to class and doing the reading over the course of the whole semester as the best way to study for it.

Some Fine but Important Print
If you have a need for accommodations in this course, please contact me during the first week of class. And if you have any questions or concerns, please let me know or come to talk to me.

COURSE DETAILS
Provide existing title and complete course catalog copy
3325. Ancient Rome (Also offered as CAMS 3325.) Three credits. Caner From the beginning of Rome to the reign of Justinian. The growth of the Roman Republic and Empire. Roman civilization and its influence upon later history.

3325. Ancient Rome: Aeneas to Augustus (Also offered as CAMS 3325.) Three credits. From the beginning of Rome to the growth of the Roman Republic and the onset of Empire. Roman civilization and its influence upon later history.

Reason for the course action
This 3000-level course, as presented in the catalog, is more of a 1000- or 2000-level survey course, and in fact overlaps with CAMS 1102: Roman Civilization. The change reduces the material covered by restricting the chronological scope to the Roman Republic, and allows for greater depth appropriate to a 3000-level course. In addition, I will propose a new course, HIST 3326: Ancient Rome: Emperors & Barbarians, to cover the period of the Roman Empire.

Specify effect on other departments and overlap with existing courses
Course is currently cross-listed as CAMS 3255.

Please provide a brief description of course goals and learning objectives
Students will learn the history of ancient Rome from its multi-cultural beginnings, through its conquest and absorption of Italy and the Mediterranean, until the collapse of the Republican form of government with the rise of Caesar and Augustus. Through both primary and secondary sources, students will develop a critical understanding of roman historiography.

Describe course assessments
Daily quizzes on the course readings, 5 short essays over the course of the semester, and a final exam. In addition, active participation on the course s graded.

HIST/CAMS 3325 ANCIENT ROME: AENEAS TO AUGUSTUS

Prof. Joseph McAlhany

WOOD HALL 230  joseph.mcalhany@uconn.edu

Required Texts
The Course

The purpose of this course is to introduce you the history and culture of one of the most influential and long-lasting civilizations of the Western world. Within a few centuries, Rome grew from a small hill-top settlement to the dominant empire of the ancient Mediterranean, and the way they thought and behaved (and the way they are believed to have thought and behaved) still shapes the way peoples all over the world act, in ways we might not recognize and in ways we might not like. You will learn not only what their history was, but also what it wasn’t: our sources are limited, and often represent only one view, so you will learn how to read and question sources. Along the way, you will also understand how history gets made, both by the people who lived it and the people who wrote it.

Requirements & Grading

Class Participation 25%
You are expected to come to class prepared to take an active role in class discussions. No electronic devices or any kind are allowed, and must not be visible.

Short Writing Assignments 30%
There will be 5 short writing assignments (750 words max.) over the course of the semester. The purpose of these assignments is to encourage your own independent and critical engagement with the readings; no secondary material or resources are permitted. You will be graded on the quality of your answer as well as spelling and grammar. Assignments are due Sunday at midnight; late assignments will not be accepted for any reason.

Daily Quizzes 30%
Each quiz consists of 5 multiple-choice quiz questions based on the week’s readings. The quizzes are designed simply to ensure that you have read the material. There will also be one or two map quizzes.
Final Exam 15%

The exams will likely consist of short essay questions, much like the prompts for the short writing assignments, though we will discuss the format near the end of the semester.

Some Fine but Important Print

If you have a need for accommodations in this course, please contact me during the first week of class. And if you have any questions or concerns, please let me know or come talk to me.

3340. World of the Later Roman Empire (Also offered as CAMS 3243.) Three credits. The profound social and cultural changes that redefined the cities, frontiers, and economies of the classical Mediterranean world and led to the Middle Ages. Developments in the eastern and western Mediterranean between the second and seventh centuries.

Reason for the course action

Many students do not know what "Late Antiquity" means, whereas "Later Roman Empire" will be recognizable. The previous catalog description reflected the areas of expertise of the previous faculty member, and are topics listed will not necessarily be covered or emphasized as in the previous version of the class.

Specify effect on other departments and overlap with existing courses

Course is already cross-listed with CAMS.

Please provide a brief description of course goals and learning objectives

Students will learn the historical transformations of the later Roman Empire, from the foundations of Constantinople and the spread of Christianity to the Byzantine period and the rise of Islam, with particular emphasis on the intellectual and cultural diversity of the Mediterranean during this period. In addition, students will learn to interpret critically primary and secondary sources, and recognize how the limitations of the sources have shaped contemporary understandings of the peoples and cultures of the late antique period.

Describe course assessments

Daily quizzes on the readings, five short writing assignments, and final exam. Course participation is also graded.

Required Texts

Required texts will be placed on reserve at Babbidge Library. Other required readings will be available on HuskyCT.
The Course

The purpose of this course is to introduce you to the historical and cultural transformations of the later Roman Empire, from the foundations of Constantinople and the rise of Christianity to the Byzantine period and the rise of Islam. The political and religious developments of this period still influence us today, in ways we might not recognize and in ways we might not like. From readings in both primary and secondary sources, you will learn not only what this history was, but also what it wasn't. Along the way, you will also learn to appreciate how history gets made, both by the people who live it and the people who write it.

Requirements & Grading

Class Participation   30%
You are expected to come to class prepared to take an active role in class discussions. No electronic devices or any kind are allowed, and must not be visible.

Short Writing Assignments 30%
There will be 5 short writing assignments (750 words max. over the course of the semester. The purpose of these assignments is to encourage your own independent and critical engagement with the readings; no secondary material or resources are permitted. You will be graded on the quality of your answer as well as spelling and grammar. Assignments are due Friday at midnight; late assignments will not be accepted for any reason.

Daily Quizzes 30%
Each quiz consists of 5 multiple-choice quiz questions based on the week's readings. The quizzes are designed simply to ensure that you have read the material. There will also be one or two map quizzes.

Final Exam 10%
The exams will likely consist of short essay questions, much like the prompts for the short writing assignments, though we will discuss the format near the end of the semester.

Some Fine but Important Print
If you have a need for accommodations in this course, please contact me during the first week of class. And if you have any questions or concerns, please let me know or come to talk to me.

Justification

1. Reasons for changing the minor:
Reflecting a change in the minor coordinator/home department from Jocelyn Linnekin in Anthropology to Sara Johnson in LCL. Reflecting catalog changes since 2012. Some new, relevant courses have been added (ANTH, CAMS, HEJS, ENGL). CAMS and HIST is undergoing a thorough renumbering to enhance consistence, Hellenistic World is a new course, and Ancient Greece/Rome are relevant courses that were previously overlooked. Attempting to correct some inconsistencies between the old Plan of Study and the current web catalog listings.

2. Effects on students:
Increased clarity, and a larger number of relevant courses to choose from. The minor attracts a small number of students annually but it is a valuable resource for those who have that interest, since UConn lacks a Religion department.

3. Effects on other departments:
Continue to promote cooperation between the many faculty of AASI, ANTH, ARTH, CAMS, HEJS, HDFS, HIST and PHIL who teach courses in which one or more of the world's religious traditions is a vital component.

4. Effects on regional campuses:
None

5. Dates approved by

Plan of Study

If the proposed change modifies the requirements of the Minor, then attach a revised "Minor Plan of Study" form to your submission email as a separate document. The plan of study should include the following information:

A. Near the top of the form:
NOTE: Completion of a minor requires that a student earn a C (2.0) or better in each of the required courses for that minor. A maximum of 3 credits towards the minor may be transfer credits of courses equivalent to University of Connecticut courses. Substitutions for required courses are possible only with the consent of the Minor Coordinator.

B. At the bottom of the form:

ARAB 2000. Arabic Folk Tales and Mirrors for Princes. Three Credits. Taught in English. Folk tales and advice to princes and rulers of the Muslim World: Arabic, Persian and Moghul texts (read in translation). The Thousand and One Nights, Joha and Kalila and Dimna, the Qabusname, Jahangirname, etc. Comparisons with European frame-tales and advice literature (Chaucer, Boccaccio, Machiavelli). Manuals for rulership from India to Andalusia. Ethics, conduct and political philosophy in folk literature and elite prose.

we are creating a Minor and a Major in Arabic Studies: this course will count towards both.

ARAB2000 explores the folk tales tradition of the Muslim World, examining texts ranging from the famous Thousand and One Nights to the tales of Joha the fool. The course examines a variety of samples from Arabic and Persian advice literature such as the Sulwan al-Muta or the Qabusname. The aim of the course is to familiarize students with these entertaining and instructive texts and to encourage them to relate them to shared, contemporary human experiences. The works selected illustrate the formation of systems of ethical and political philosophy in various Arabo-Islamic milieux. Students will also be presented with frame tales and advice literature from other traditions, namely that Medieval and Renaissance European one. The course thus aims to provide engaging materials for students to reflect on concepts of legitimate rule, enlightened government, bad administration as well as personal ethical conduct.
Describe course assessments

Course assessment include 1) four quizzes taken in class, aimed at ascertaining the engagement of each student with the readings, 2) oral presentations which will replace the midterm, aimed at aiding students in articulating their critical thoughts in a structured and clear fashion, 3) a final research paper on a topic or text of choice. The weekly reading assignments constitute the foundation of the course and classes will largely discuss the assigned readings.

General Education Goals

The overall goal of ARAB2000 is to give students access to famous and lesser known texts on ethics, moral and political philosophy produced in Arabo-Islamic milieux. Thanks to both their entertaining quality and their relevance to shared and universal human experiences, these works endured centuries of success among generations of readers in the Arab world and beyond. As such, the texts presented are aimed to enrich the students's conception of the "ethical" and the "political", of just rulership and of personal conduct. The texts presented will be analysed from an aesthetic perspective as artistic creations, whether belonging to folk or elite literature. The course will expose the students to various research and analysis methodologies: structuralism and post-structuralism as well as feminist, green and marxist literary theory.

Content Area: Arts and Humanities

Students taking ARAB200 will develop a deep understanding of ethical writing and advice literature, both in popular as well as elite modes, within the Arabo-Islamic milieu. The course includes careful examination of the various theoretical approaches and methods literary analysis of these texts: oral-formulaic composition, ring-composition, theory from structuralism to green studies. Students will explore unique ethical issues through the medium of literature in the entertaining form of tales, epistles and anecdotes. Lectures, classroom discussion, and readings will equip students with critical tools to approach these texts in an informed and competent fashion, relying on both their own reading experience as well as on theoretical tools. Emphasis will be placed on understanding the formation of a corpus of ethical writing in the Arabo-Islamic world, and on how such a corpus negotiated, subverted and altered Islamic practices in certain environments such as the court as well as in specific social arrangements such the Andalusian or the Moghul. Research methodologies in the humanities will be implemented both in class discussion and in the assignments, which include a final research paper in journal format.

Content Area: Diversity and Multiculturalism (International)

ARAB2000 surveys texts belonging to a variety of ethnic milieux, from India to the Iberian Peninsula. These texts testify to the diversity and multiculturalty of the Muslim World, and thus aim at nuancing the students' understanding of "East" as a monolithic, uniform society. The texts presented have been selected to reveal to the students the unique features of the cultural mosaic of the "Arabo-Islamic world": Christian, Jewish, Muslim, Zoroastrian, Pagan and Hindi cultures coexisted in this world, cross-pollinating and giving birth to a unique, transcultural, shared literary patrimony. ARAB2000 aims at exploring such a patrimony, taking folk tales and mirrors for princes as its looking glass.

Office Hours: T/Th 1-2pm OAK 238.

This course surveys the rich tradition of Arabic folk tales, from the Thousand and One Nights to the tales of Joha in the Maghreb. It also explores the repertoire of advice literature, or “mirrors for princes”, composed for the benefit of Muslim rulers since the early Middle Ages. As they approach these fantastic tales, students will be encouraged to think about the formulation of moral codes and ethics within Arabo-Islamic milieux. Can we apply these teaching in daily life? what about political philosophy? How did Muslim thinkers envision “the just ruler” and how did they seek to shape and define rulership? What kind of moral conduct did these elite writers conceive of? What taboos did they break with their stories and advice? The course is also aimed at comparing these tales with frame-tales belonging to different cultural traditions such as Machiavelli’s “Il Principe”, Boccaccio’s “Decameron”, and Chaucer’s “Canterbury Tales”. What parallels can we draw?

Objectives:
Through this course students will:

· become familiar with the most important collection of Arabic fables, as well as Arabic prose defined as 'mirrors for princes'.

· develop and implement critical tools to carry out integrated analyses of textual materials both from an aesthetic perspective as well as social, political, and ideologically produced texts.

· gain an understanding of Classical Arabo-Islamic society in its diverse, plural and conflicting aspects.

· conduct cross-cultural comparisons in the textual traditions analysed

Supportive Reading and Materials:

- The Thousand and One Nights
- Sulwan al-Muta - Ibn Zafar
- Tales of Joha
- HuskyCT

Plagiarism: Plagiarism is the theft of another’s ideas, specific language, or other media, and the presentation –for the purposes of evaluation– of that material as one’s own, at any stage of the writing process, including (but not limited to) journal entries, drafts of papers, and final submissions of papers. Any student who commits plagiarism will receive a grade of “F” for the course. The Dean of the College may also refer the case to the Academic Misconduct Hearing Board to consider whether or not further penalties, including expulsion from the University, are warranted.

Grade Breakdown:

40% Performance and participation: you will be expected to participate in discussions and to have carefully read, viewed, and given thought to the material set for each class. For each class that you miss, you will lose the total points allotted to that day.

20% Quizzes (5% each): there will be four in-class quizzes covering both the readings and the viewings.

20% Oral Presentations (replace the midterm): each student will be requested to prepare a presentation on one of the course films/topics. The presentation replaces the midterm. You can choose both the film and the date of your presentation.

20% Final: Research paper on a topic of choice.

Plan of classes:
 This plan of classes can be subjected to any change that the instructor might deem appropriate. If such changes occur, students will be informed in class by the instructor. The updated syllabus will always be available in HuskyCT.

Film in the Arab World, broadly intended as the Middle East, North Africa and sub Saharan Africa. Historical, social, religious and political phenomena that shape contemporary cultural discourse in these regions, analyzed through film screenings and selected readings. Critical engagement with issues of gender, radicalization, war and displacement as well as with key historical events such as the Arab-Israeli conflict, the Lebanese civil war, decolonization in the Middle East and Africa, and Islam in the 21st century.

Reason for the course action
We are creating a Minor and a Major in Arabic Studies and the course will count towards both.

Specify effect on other departments and overlap with existing courses
The course will substitute ARIS 2200: Arabic Cinema.

Please provide a brief description of course goals and learning objectives
This course introduces students to the films produced in the Arab World, broadly intended as the Middle East, North Africa and stretching to Subsharian Africa. The course will familiarize students with historical, social, religious and political phenomena that have shaped and affected contemporary cultural discourse in these regions in an ongoing manner. We will engage critically with both visual and textual materials, investigating how cinema is used to explore topical issues such as identity, gender, war and displacement, poverty and social reform, the Islamic heritage and modernization, pluralism, decolonization and terrorism. Students will gain knowledge, through screenings, readings and discussion, of key issues in Middle Eastern politics: the Arab-Israeli conflict, the Lebanese civil war, decolonization.

Describe course assessments
Assessments include: 1. Class discussion: students a required to participate with collegiality and in an informed fashion, based on assigned readings, in class discussion. 2. Quizzes: the course is divided in thematic modules covering each one specific issue. At the end of each module, students will take a quiz to assess their preparation on readings and their critical approaches to screenings. 3. Presentations: students are required to present on a topic or film of choice. 4. Final research paper: a 10-15 pages research paper as a final exam. The research paper may focus on both films or topics, and can be approached from any critical standpoint, backed by an up-to-date bibliography.

General Education Goals
The overall goal of ARAB 2100 is to strengthen student’s critical skills in approaching foreign film and to expand their knowledge of key social and political issues in the Middle East and North Africa. Through multiple formats including screenings, readings and discussion, students taking ARAB 2100 will become articulate in regards to their analysis of the visual media produced in the Arab World, as well as in regards to film as a medium of social engagement and political dissent. Films of the Middle East and North Africa will be analyzed from an aesthetic perspective as well as in specific historical context to provide students with a

COURSE DETAILS
3200, Al-Andalus: Music, Literature and Science in Muslim Spain. Three credits. Taught in English. The cultural heritage of Muslim Spain through literature, music, philosophy, medicine, art and architecture. Muslim Spain experienced through visual and textual media. Christian, Jewish and Muslim interactions in medieval Europe. Collective and individualized research into aspects of multi-religious and multi-ethnic coexistence in Medieval Iberia.

Reason for the course action
We are creating the Minor and the Major in Arabic and this course will count towards both.

Specify effect on other departments and overlap with existing courses
None.

Please provide a brief description of course goals and learning objectives
This course surveys the history and culture of Muslim Spain through a selection of films and documentaries, original Arabic texts (in English translation), songs, and contemporary historiography. Students are introduced to the works of major Andalusian thinkers, poets, physicians, musicians, architects and mystics. The Muslim, Christiand and Jewish traditions are examined. The course will construct a narrative of the whole history of Muslim Spain from the first wave of Islamic expansion into the Iberian peninsula to the expulsion of the Moriscos. Students will gain a deep knowledge of historical and cultural aspects of Medieval Iberia. They will be encouraged to reflect on issues of ethnicity and religious identity, nations and nationalisms, political legitimacy. By the end of the course, students will possess a thorough command over the main historical phases of the Islamic presence in Iberia.

Describe course assessments
1) Quizzes: Four to five in-class quizzes aimed at assessing students' engagement with the materials. 2) 2 oral presentations on a topic of choice 3) Final research paper. The readings cover historiographical materials as well as literary criticism and academic articles on specific topics in the course.

General Education Goals
The overall goal of ARAB 3200 is to provide students with in-depth knowledge of the history and culture of Islamic Spain in its multi-religious and multi-ethnic diversity. Through multiple formats including in-class listenings, screenings, discussion and a selection of historiographical and literary texts, students taking ARAB 3200 will become familiar with cultural artifacts produced in the Arabo-Islamic milieu and in the Maghreb. Class discussion will include a careful examination of possible critical approaches to texts, music and film. Students will be encouraged to analyze aspects of Muslim-Iberian cultural production through the lens of contemporary questions such as nationalism, political legitimacy and its construction, civil and sectarian strife as well as "convivencia". Through research papers and oral presentation, students will develop critical approaches to both primary sources and historical narratives.

Content Area: Arts and Humanities
ARAB3200 explores the history and culture of Muslim Spain through a variety of media that represent the arts and humanities at their fullest: art, architecture, music, literature, philosophy, historiography, poetry and dance. The course aims to promote student understanding of the Arabo-Islamic contributions to Iberia as part and parcel of the "Western", "European" world. Historical, cultural, and textual connections between Muslim Iberia and the courts of medieval Europe will be highlighted in order to provide students with more nuanced understanding of European identity and to challenge assumptions about ethnicity, religious identity and nationality. Nationalist narratives will be discussed to illustrate the impact of ideologies on the fabrication of historical myths and cultural identities.

Content Area: Diversity and Multiculturalism (International)
ARAB3200 surveys texts belonging to a variety of ethnic milieu produced in the Iberian peninsula in the early and late Middle Ages. These texts testify to the diversity and multiculturality of Muslim Spain, and thus aim at nuancing the students' understanding of Islam and the West as isolated poles. The texts presented have been selected to reveal the multi-confessional mosaic of Andalusian culture, where Christian, Jewish, and Muslim traditions developed jointly, giving birth to a transcultural, shared literary patrimony. ARAB3200 aims at exploring this patrimony through readings, screenings and the listening of cultural artefacts from al-Andalus.

ARAB 3200 - AL-ANDALUS: MUSIC, SCIENCE AND LITERATURE IN MUSLIM SPAIN

TAUGHT IN ENGLISH, 3 CREDITS.
Instructor: Nicola Carpentieri

Description:
This course surveys the history and culture of Muslim Spain through a selection of films and documentaries, original Arabic texts (in English translation), songs, and contemporary historiography. We will make the acquaintance of great Andalusian thinkers, poets, physicians, musicians, architects and mystics. Our journey through this fascinating time and place begins with the first wave of Islamic expansion and the Muslim conquest of the Iberian peninsula. We will then see how the city Córdoba rose to become one of the most important metropolises in Europe, the seat of an independent Caliphate, and a center of scholarship and learning for Muslims, Jews and Christians. We will discuss the fall of the Umayyad Spanish Caliphate and the subsequent rise of the kings of Taifas, who vied for political supremacy and intellectual primacy in the Iberian Peninsula. We will read first-hand accounts of the demise of the Taifa kings at the hands of the North African Almoravid troops and explore the final chapters of Muslim sovereignty in Iberia: the Almohad empire and the Nasrid kingdom of Granada.

Please provide a brief description of course goals and learning objectives
ARAB 3400 aims to expose students to complex and yet highly engaging texts by Arab travellers from the Middle Ages to modern times. Through reading, discussion and translation of these texts, students will develop competence in formal Arabic, mastering difficult grammatical structures and complex rhetoric. The texts have been selected to show the multiplicity of cultural contacts between Arabo-Islamic societies and the wider world. The students will be exposed to a variety of writing styles: orate prose, poetry, classicist modern writing, etc... and to develop personal approaches to translate them. By the end of the course, students will have gained confidence in approaching Arabic texts of any level, different styles. The course also aims at developing the students' cultural competence by giving a wider array of samples from major writers in Arabic literature.

Describe course assessments
In-class translation quizzes, In-class translation, mid-term, and final. Reading assignments will include Arabic texts to be translated at home, and complementary reading in English to provide background.

2018 01 30 CLAS CC Agenda.docx Updated 1/29/2018
Arabic Travel Narratives ARAB- 3400

Instructor: Prof. Nicola Carpentieri

Description:

This course covers a selection of the most famous accounts penned by medieval and modern Arab travellers. Through their narratives, we will explore fascinating transcultural contacts between the Arabo-Islamic world and cultures such as the Volga Vikings, the Normans of Sicily, China, sub-Saharan Africa, medieval Spain and 19th century France. Our texts, both in prose and poetry, non-fictional and fictional, will be mainly in Arabic. Additional readings in English will be provided in order to better situate each writer in their socio-historical milieu.

Supportive Readings and Materials:
The Travels of Ibn Battuta
Ibn Hawqal, Surat al-Ard
Ibn Jubayr, Rihla
Ibn Hamdis, Diwan
The thousand and one nights
Ibn Fadlan - Risala
Al-Tahatawi - A Paris Profile
HuskyCT

Objectives
During this course:
• You will gain privileged insights on transcultural encounters through first hand Arabic sources
• You will become familiar with Arabic travel narratives as a literary genre
• You will improve reading, understanding and translating complex Arabic texts

Assignments
• You will be expected to come to class having prepared all the assignments and to participate actively in class discussion
• Three Quizzes (in class) on the assigned readings
• One midterm: take-home translation
• Final exam: in-class translation

Grade Breakdown

30% Performance and Participation. You will be expected to participate in discussions and to have carefully read and given thought to the material set for each class. For each class that you miss, you will lose the total points allotted to that day.
30% Quizzes (5% each)
20% Midterm
20% Final Exam
Plagiarism: Plagiarism is the theft of another’s ideas or specific language, and the presentation of that material as one’s own. In translation, plagiarism is copying out or following another translator’s word choices without an acknowledgment. Any student who commits plagiarism will receive a grade of “F” for the course. The Dean of the College may also refer the case to the Academic Misconduct Hearing Board to consider whether or not further penalties, including expulsion from the University, are warranted.

PLAN OF CLASSES:
 This plan of classes can be subjected to any change that the instructor might deem appropriate. If such changes occur, students will be informed in class by the instructor. The updated syllabus will always be available in HuskyCT.

Instructor: Hazza Abu Rabia

The Muslim World has been a genre of Western movies and popular literature for over a century. This course examines closely how European and American intellectuals and film directors perceived and presented Islam and the Arabs to their audience. The predominantly negative image of everything Islamic in the West today is, partly, the accumulative result of consistent literary misrepresentations of Islam and the Arabs. This course reviews representations of Muslims in medieval text books, and in the 18 & 19 century western travel books to the East, and how these representations became a source for early Hollywood films and later spread to media coverage.

The second part of the course offers a critical examination of Arabs and Muslims stereotypes in Western Cinema and media. Students will reveal and critique the stereotypical portrayals of Arabs and Muslims in U.S. and Western popular culture; providing historical context about the negative images of Arabs and Muslims in the West, which range from early western text, film stills, Newspapers and media.

Objectives of the Course:

- To examine image of Islam and the Arabs in some Western literary works.
- To critique image of Arabs and Muslims in Western Cinema and media.
  3. Familiarize the students with the roots and origins of these negative images.

Reading:

Students are expected to have read the assigned reading BEFORE coming to class. Even if you are experiencing difficulty, please finish the readings and bring your questions to class.

Grading:

30% attendance

20 % oral presentations (2)

25 % final exam

<td>ARAB3600 is an in-depth survey of the main periods and writers of Classical Arabic literature. The course is designed to involve students in textual analyses based on contemporary criticism and literary theory. The course readings are selected both from primary sources in translation (Arabic original texts will be optional) and from contemporary scholarship in Arabic literary studies. By familiarizing themselves with contemporary criticism, students will become conversant with the contemporary discourse around Classical Arabic literature and develop critical skills. As a W course, ARAB3600 is designed to provide individualized supervision for each student to develop critical writing skills relevant to literary analysis.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Describe course assessments</td>
<td>Readings selected from first-hand Arabic sources in translations, history of Arabic literature texts, scholarly articles and reviews. Four in-class quizzes to assess student's engagement with the assigned readings. Two research papers (mid-term and final) with a combined length of 15-20 pages. Students will be assisted in preparing both papers during compulsory office hours and through class lectures and discussion.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>General Education Goals</td>
<td>The overall goal of ARAB3600 is to provide students with a comprehensive view of Classical Arabic Literature, from pre-Islamic poetry to late Arabic belles-lettres (5th-14th century). In parallel, the course will develop the students' capacity to engage critically with these texts via the written medium and in a fashion conversant with contemporary scholarship on the subject. In order to achieve this, the course provides students with both original Arabic sources (in translation) and samples of recent scholarship that engages on a critical level with such sources. Students will be exposed to a variety of theoretical approaches ranging from structuralism, to gender studies and green studies. Through careful supervision and assessment of their work in progress, the instructor will help students to develop their writing skills as they learn about Arabic writers and Arabic literary genres, trends and modes.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Content Area: Arts and Humanities</td>
<td>ARAB3600 will prepare students to read challenging Arabic literary texts and to think and write critically about them. The course readings are selected to give students the critical tools to approach Arabic literature in an informed and creative way. By becoming conversant with contemporary scholarship in Arabic Literary Studies, students will gain confidence in writing creative about Arabic literature. They will be encouraged to find their own voice when interpreting the many facets of Arabic literature: pre-Islamic poems, devotional literature, wine and erotic verse, mysticism. The course fulfills the content area by covering most genres and modes of Arabic literature, analyzed both according to aesthetic canons of their time and the lens of contemporary theory, from structuralism, to post-colonial studies, gender and green studies.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Skill Code W</td>
<td>ARAB3600 is designed to develop the student's proficiency in writing about Arabic texts in an informed way, help them become conversant with contemporary theory and with recent scholarly work in the field of Arabic Literary Studies. The students are assigned two research papers (one as a mid-term, the second as a final), which they will prepare according to state-of-the-art journal style sheets and adopting the typographic conventions used in the field of Arabic Studies. Students will be equipped with all the necessary reference works needed to develop strong critical essays. Students' writing will be closely monitored by the instructor during compulsory office hours. Students will be required to submit 3 drafts of each research paper. The instructor will return each draft with annotations. Students will have the option of discussing the annotated draft on a one-to-one basis before resubmitting. The instructor will take particular care in helping each student to develop a clear style and to devise their personal, creative approach to the text.</td>

Description:
This course surveys Classical Arabic Literature from pre-Islamic times to the late Middle Ages. We will explore ancient Arabian poems, the Quran as a literary and religious text, the development of Arabic prose and narrative, Umayyad and Abbasid poetry, and literature in the Muslim Empire from Iberia to Iran. Besides these primary sources the course will equip you with fundamental notions of contemporary literary theory and provide you with critical essays that engage with Classical Arabic texts. You will become conversant with recent scholarship in the field of Arabic literature, and you will be encouraged to develop your own critical voice in writing. Your writing will be closely monitored and supported: the instructor will assist you individually as you prepare your research papers on topics of your choice among those presented in the course. We will be discussing modes and approaches for reading Arabic Literature and writing about it. Writing will be taught in class: you will learn how to articulate your argument in a cohesive, scholarly fashion, adopting both the conventions of the field, as well as developing your own style. This course requires you to submit two research papers (a mid-term and final) in different drafts. Each draft will be reviewed and annotated by the instructor, and you will be required to attend compulsory office hours while working on each draft. The deadlines for draft submission are indicated in the Plan of Classes below.

This is a General Education, Group 1: Arts and Humanities course, which means:
Arts and Humanities courses should provide a broad vision of artistic and humanist themes. These courses should enable students themselves to study and understand the artistic, cultural and historical processes of humanity. They should encourage students to explore their own traditions and their places within the larger world so that they, as informed citizens, may participate more fully in the rich diversity of human languages and cultures. The primary modes of exploration and inquiry within the Arts and Humanities are historical, critical, and aesthetic. The subject matter of courses in Group One should be approached and analyzed by the instructor from such artistic or humanistic perspectives. Courses appropriate to this category must, through historical, critical and/or aesthetic modes of inquiry, introduce students to and engage them in (for the purpose of ARAB3600W) ... investigations and historical/critical analyses of human experience.

Course objectives:
By the end of the course you will:
- have gained in-depth knowledge of Arabic literary periods and their main protagonists: poets, scholars, writers and patrons
- have become conversant with literary theory and recent scholarship in Arabic literary studies
- have developed skills in scholarly writing in the field of Arabic literature
- have improved your overall writing skills

Grades and their numerical values:

A: 94-100  C+: 77-79  D-: 60-63
A+: 90-93  C: 74-76  F: 0-59
B+: 87-89  C-: 70-73
B: 84-86  D+: 67-69
B-: 80-83  D: 64-66

Journals and reference works you will find useful: The Encyclopaedia of Islam (Brill) - request access from instructor, The Journal of Arabic Literature (JAL), Journal of American Oriental Society, IJMES (these three journals are available through the library), "Reorientations" ed. Stetkevych.

This is also a W course. You must pass the W portion of the course in order to pass the course: this requires the submission of two research papers, each 8-10 pages in length. The papers will be submitted as drafts, revised and annotated by the instructor, and redeveloped by each student, the deadlines for submitting each draft are indicated in the Plan of Studies.

Grade Breakdown:
Students are required to read and prepare for discussion of all assigned materials in a timely fashion. Attendance will be taken at the beginning of every class meeting. The final grade is broken down as follows:

1. Attendance & Participation: 20%
2. Quizzes 20%
3. Mid-term Research Paper: 30%
4. Final Research Paper: 30%

Other policies:

- Because this is a W course, revision is required for each paper. You must submit a draft for feedback for each paper. If you have an emergency that causes you to get behind in the timeline for submission of drafts and redrafts for each paper, please contact me and we’ll work out a new timeline for you. Please note that you will produce approximately 18 pages of polished and revised writing for this course.
- If you need to miss a class, please talk with me ahead of time so that we can make arrangements for you to make up the material.

Plagiarism: Plagiarism is the theft of another’s ideas or specific language, and the presentation of that material as one’s own. In translation, plagiarism is copying out or following another translator’s word choices without an acknowledgement. Any student who commits plagiarism will receive a grade of “F” for the course. The Dean of the College may also refer the case to the Academic Misconduct Hearing Board to consider whether or not further penalties, including expulsion from the University, are warranted.

Plan of Classes:

 This plan of classes can be subjected to any change that the instructor might deem appropriate. If such changes occur, students will be informed in class by the instructor. The updated syllabus will always be available in HuskyCT.

Each week there will be a number of assigned readings covering the most important authors dealt with in class. Expect to be required to read anywhere between 40-60 pages.

ARAB 3700 - Media Arabic

Instructor: Nicola Carpentieri and Team
Office: Oak Hall 238
Office Hours: T-Th: 2-3pm

Media Arabic
This course is designed to train students in reading original Arabic materials about the Arab World. The course provides students with the vocabulary and discourse structures necessary to critically analyze and speak about topics in today's Arabic media coverage. Students are expected to prepare for the readings on their own with the help of a dictionary. Each text is read in class and each topic discussed in Modern Standard Arabic. Generally, a written assignment is given at the completion of the reading.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES
This course is designed to train students interested in a professional career involving the use of Arabic written materials and media. This class will explore the Middle East through the region's media providing timely analysis of Arabic media, as well as original analysis of ideological, intellectual, social, cultural, and religious trends in the Middle East that caused the current turmoil and revolutions.

Attendance Policies:
You are expected to come prepared for class. This means that before you come to class you should read and prepare for presenting your reading in class, and be ready to answer questions. Students will work on a final project at the end of the semester to analyze different phenomenon of the Middle East through the media from a perspective of their choice.

Grading:
10 % attendance and participation in class.
15% work assignments and presentations (one to two). Homework handed in late will NOT receive credit unless there are very clear extenuating circumstances.
25 % posting weekly news and commenting on classmates’ other news. You should bring خبر غريب أو ظريف قصير on Huskyct and to comment on one at least of the other posted news.
20% Midterm exam

ARAB 3800 - Modern Arabic Literature
Taught in Arabic, Three Credits
Office: Oak Hall 238
Supportive Readings and Materials:
HuskyCT
Nagib Mahfouz: Midaq Alley
Nagib Mahfouz: Children of Gebalaawi
Nagib Mahfouz: Adrift on the Nile
Alaa’ Alaswani: The Yacoubian Building,
Afri Di Mihnaz: Naguib Mahfouz and Modern Islamic Identity

Description:
This course explores Arab culture and identity through the lens of modern Arabic novels. We will examine two contemporary famous novel writers from Egypt, Alaa Al-Aswani and Naguib Mahfouz. In their novels, both writers described the social, political and cultural change in Egypt. General themes such as the conflict between tradition and modernity, religion and secularism, anti-colonialism and revolutionary discourses, language and nationalistic ideologies will be the focus of the course. Other topics will be war, emigration, poverty, alienation, childhood, education, freedom of expression, religion and politics, and changing gender roles. Through the analysis of literary texts, students will gain a better understanding of literature as a mode of commenting on, and interacting with given political, social, economic etc. situations. The course has its focus in a close reading the original Arabic source texts, but uses also critical writings in order to support analysis and to place recent developments in Arabic literature in the wider context of postcolonial and global writing.

Course objectives
Students will come out of this course with a solid working knowledge of the major trends in Egypt’s modern cultural and political history, including the impact of colonialism, authoritarianism and neo-liberalism; the changing attitudes towards women, and the conflict between secularism and political Islam. They will become familiar with the broad range of Mahfouz and Al-Aswani’s work and gain insight into the enduring narrative of Egyptian identity that they constructed through their novels.

Course Requirements:
Students are required to read and prepare for discussion of all assigned materials in a timely fashion. Attendance will be taken at the beginning of every class meeting. Your final grade will be based on the following:
1. Attendance & Participation 10%
2. 4 Quizzes 20%
3. 4 short papers (5 pages each) 40%
4. Mid-term Exam 15%
5. Final Exam 15%

Plan of Classes:

Arabic Poetry and Poetics ARAB- 3900

Taught in English and Arabic, 2 years of formal Arabic required, 3 credits.

Instructor: Prof. Nicola Carpentieri

Description:

This course covers a selection of Arabic poems from pre-Islamic times to the Middle Ages, ranging from Iraq to the Iberian Peninsula. The course will give students an overview of the main trends, modes, genres, periods and authors of the Arabic Classical poetic canon. Poetry will be translated in class, where we will discuss possible approaches to challenging lines. Classical Arabic texts in poetic criticism are included in the course for the discussion of selected poems. Through this course, students will become conversant with Arabic poetic terminology, criticism and theory, while developing advanced reading, writing and translating skills. The course is aimed at advanced students of Arabic.

Supportive Readings and Materials:
HuskyCT

Objectives
By the hand of the course you will
• be familiar with periods, genres and authors of Arabic poetry as well as Arabic critics
• have developed advanced reading and translating techniques in Classical Arabic
• have an understanding of Arabic poetry and poetics from an aesthetic, historical and theoretical point of view.

Assignments
• You will be expected to come to class having prepared all the assignments and to participate actively in class discussion
• Four Quizzes (in class) on the assigned readings
• One midterm: take-home translation
• Final exam: in-class translation

Grade Breakdown

30% Performance and Participation. You will be expected to participate in discussions and to have carefully read and given thought to the material set for each class. For each class that you miss, you will lose the total points allotted to that day.
30% Quizzes (5% each)
20% Midterm
20% Final Exam
Plagiarism: Plagiarism is the theft of another’s ideas or specific language, and the presentation of that material as one’s own. In translation, plagiarism is copying out or following another translator’s word choices without an acknowledgment. Any student who commits plagiarism will receive a grade of “F” for the course. The Dean of the College may also refer the case to the Academic Misconduct Hearing Board to consider whether or not further penalties, including expulsion from the University, are warranted.

PLAN OF CLASSES:
 This plan of classes can be subjected to any change that the instructor might deem appropriate. If such changes occur, students will be informed in class by the instructor. The updated syllabus will always be available in HuskyCT.

2018-57   Arabic & Islamic Civilizations Add major (guest: Nicola Carpentieri)

COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS AND SCIENCES
COMMITTEE ON CURRICULA AND COURSES

Proposal to Create a Major
Last revised: March 22, 2016

1. Date: January, 24, 2018
2. Department or Program: LCL
3. Title of Major: Arabic and Islamic Civilizations
4. Effective Date (semester, year): Fall 2018
(Consult Registrar’s change catalog site to determine earliest possible effective date. If a later date is desired, indicate here.)

Catalog Description of Major
The Arabic and Islamic Civilizations major requires a minimum of 24 credits of Arabic and Islamic Civilizations courses (ARAB and ARIS subject areas), plus a minimum of 12 credits of related courses from programs other than Arabic and Islamic Civilizations. A minimum of 12 major credits must consist of Arabic and Islamic Civilizations courses taken in residence. Only 6 may be transfer credits. AP credits may not be used toward the major.

Pre-requisites: four semester of formal Arabic at 1000 level, or comparable proficiency. Proficiency must be approved by Major advisor.

Arabic and Islamic Civilizations majors must complete a minimum of twelve courses, for a total of 36 credits, distributed as follows:

1) Two courses from each of the following groups (ARAB and ARIS subject areas), for a total of 18 credits:

D) Literature: ARAB 3400, ARAB 3600, ARAB 3800, ARAB 3900

E) Culture: ARAB 2000, ARAB 2100, ARAB 3200

F) Language: ARAB 2170, ARIS 3000, ARAB 3212, ARAB 3700

2) Two additional courses from any of the above groups (ARAB and ARIS subject areas), for a total of 6 credits.

3) Four courses or 12 additional related credits are required in 2000-, 3000- and 4000-level from programs other than Arabic and Islamic Civilizations. Related courses can belong to many subject areas and must always be approved by the advisor. These may include:

- Courses in any modern or classical language.
- Any English, Linguistics, or Philosophy course.
- Any Communication Sciences course that is directly related to second language acquisition or the Arab World
- Any History, Political Science, Art History, Anthropology, Sociology, Economics, or Geography course that deals with Islamic culture or the Arab world.

Enrollment in a study abroad program in an Arabic-speaking country is recommended but not mandatory for Arabic and Islamic Civilizations majors. With advisor’s consent, any of the above courses may be replaced by an appropriate ARAB 3293 course from study abroad programs. Up to 12 credits taken in study abroad programs may count toward the major. Students can enroll in either UConn-sponsored or non-UConn-sponsored programs. In either case, students must consult with the advisor to determine which courses will receive credit.

ARIS 3000 is mandatory for all Arabic and Civilizations major, unless comparable proficiency is Classical Arabic is demonstrated and only with advisor’s approval.

To satisfy the Information Literacy Competency and Writing in the major requirements, all students must take ARAB 3600W.

Justification

1. Identify the core concepts and questions considered integral to the discipline:

The proposed bachelor's degree in Arabic and Islamic Civilizations will allow students to gain an understanding of the extraordinary complexity of the so-called “Arab World”. Students will become familiar with Islam as the foundational driver of civilizations ranging from the shores of the Atlantic to the Oxus river. They will gain in-depth knowledge of literary and epistemological traditions, practices, institutions and customs disciplinarily defined as Islamicate, that is, the products of regions in which Muslims were/are culturally dominant, but which are not necessarily religious in nature.

The Arabic language, spoken by over 290 million people, is the fundamental tool to gain access to the manifold dimensions of Islamicate culture. Classical Arabic is the liturgical language of 1.7 billion Muslims and boasts a 15-century-long literary tradition stretching from pre-Islamic Arabia to contemporary writers all over the Arab-speaking world. Such a literary tradition shaped Arabo-Islamic societies, their ethos, lore and, in some instances, even institutions. In its modernised version -MSA, or modern standard Arabic-, Classical Arabic is the language used by the Arabic media, in contemporary narrative and universally understood across the Arab world. The purpose of the proposed BA is twofold: 1) to prepare students in the scholarly field of Arabic studies, with a special emphasis on Arabic literature and Classical Arabic; 2) to provide students with solid working knowledge of contemporary Arabic society explored through the media, cinema and contemporary literature, with a focus on Modern Standard Arabic and local variants of spoken Arabic, such as Levantine. Students may choose to focus on one of the above two aspects or to explore both. Diversity, pluralism, transculturation and globalization are some of the core concepts integral to the Arabic and Islamic Civilizations program. The BA is designed to include linguistic traditions other than Arabic that participated in the formation of the Islamicate culture, beginning with Persian, a language already offered at LCL.

Core disciplinary questions include but are not limited to: What do the terms “Arabic” and “Islamic” mean? How are they related? Was and is there only one Arabic language, literature, history, identity, ethnicity and culture? How did Arabic culture come about? Was it through isolated linear development or complicated global interpolations of diverse cultures? What is the relation of Arabic and Islamicate societies to “Western” learning? How did the West perceive, appropriate, craft and distort the image(s) of an Arabo-Islamic civilization?

Through the exploration of the above questions (and others), the Arabic and Islamic Civilizations major positions students to pursue a broad range of academic and professional careers in an increasingly diverse and globalized environment.

2. Explain how the courses required for the Major cover the core concepts identified in the previous question:

LANGUAGE COURSES: ARAB 2170: Levantine Arabic, ARIS 3000: Classical Arabic, ARAB 3212: Composition and Conversation, ARAB 3700: Media Arabic

LITERATURE COURSES: ARAB 34000: Arabic Travel Narratives, ARAB 36000W: Classical Arabic Literature, ARAB 3800: Modern Arabic Literature, ARAB 4000: Arabic Poetry and Poetics

CULTURE COURSES: ARAB 2000: Folk Tales and Mirrors for Princes, ARAB 2100: Cinema in the Middle East and North Africa, ARAB 3200: Al-Andalus: Music, Poetry and Science in Muslim Spain, ARIS 4000: Islamicate Societies: Advanced Readings

Taking as its central mission the study of peoples of African descent on the continent and in the diaspora, the Africana Studies major seeks a nuanced and interdisciplinary understanding of the human experience. The Africana Studies major does so through the humanities, arts, and social sciences, with particular emphasis on continuities and discontinuities across geography and time. Its broad educational objectives are to engender among all students an intellectual appreciation of black lives and their saliency for all human experience; to deepen students’ critical analytic skills; and to value social equality, democracy, and humanitarianism. The Africana Studies major strives to provide students with substantive knowledge of the black world and its linkages to national as well as pre-, sub-, supra-, and transnational processes. Students play an active role in the Africana Studies Institute’s mission to facilitate respect and positive intersocial relationships within the university community. Completion of the B.A. in Africana Studies prepares the student for work in government, community agencies, international organizations, business, journalism and communications, or for graduate studies that lead to careers in research and teaching.
Requirements

To satisfy the Africana Studies major, the student must complete twenty-seven credits in AFRA courses, with at least one three-credit course in each of groups A, B, and C. Students must also complete 12 credits of related courses from Group D. Variable Content courses may be applied to distribution groups determined by course content and advisor consent. All majors must take AFRA 2211 and AFRA 4994W; the latter is generally taken senior year.

Proposal to Change a Minor
Last revised: September 24, 2013

1. Date: January 11, 2018
2. Department or Program: Africana Studies Institute
3. Title of Minor: Africana Studies
4. Effective Date (semester, year): Fall 2018
   (Consult Registrar’s change catalog site to determine earliest possible effective date. If a later date is desired, indicate here.)
5. Nature of change: To expand the selection of relevant courses to fulfill Minor requirements.

Existing Catalog Description of Minor

Africana Studies Minor

Taking as its central mission the study of peoples of African descent on the continent and in the diaspora, the Africana Studies minor seeks a nuanced and interdisciplinary understanding of the human experience. The Africana Studies minor does so through the humanities, arts, and social sciences, with particular emphasis on continuities and discontinuities across geography and time. Its broad educational objectives are to engender among all students an intellectual appreciation of black lives and their saliency for all human experience; to deepen students’ critical analytic skills; and to value social equality, democracy, and humanitarianism. The Africana Studies minor strives to provide students with substantive knowledge of the black world and its linkages to national as well as pre-, sub-, supra-, and transnational processes. Students play an active role in Africana Studies Institute’s mission to facilitate respect and positive intersocial relationships within the university community.

The requirements include 15 credit hours selected from the following:

d.  AFRA 2211

e.  One course each from groups A, B, and C
f.  One additional course from any of groups A, B, or C; or AFRA 3295; or 3898

Group A: History

- AFRA/HIST 3564, 3568, 3620, 3752, 3753

COURSE DETAILS

| Provide proposed title and complete course catalog copy | HIST 2810. Crime, Policing, and Punishment in the United States Three credits. A survey of political, legal, and cultural development of the American criminal justice system and its social impact from the early republic to the present. |
| Reason for the course action | After decades of neglect by historians, criminal justice history is a newly resurgent subfield in American history; as such, no such course exists in the catalog. As a 2000-level class, particularly one primarily offered at the Hartford campus (where a history major is not offered), this course is intended to introduce non-majors to a subfield that has wide appeal to students interested in policy, social justice, and urban issues, as well as history. Given the enduring legacy of places like Old Newgate Prison and events like the Hartford Riot, this class represents an opportunity for local public engagement long term, particularly given that the Hartford Public Library will be doing a year-long programming emphasis on criminal justice topics in 2019. |
| Specify effect on other departments and overlap with existing courses | There are not other courses in the university that explore the history of the carceral state in the US from the colonial period to the recent past using historical tools, methods, and readings. It will complement courses like Sociology 2310, Introduction to Criminal Justice which uses sociological methods to explore contemporary criminal justice issues as well as Political Science 3827, Politics of Crime and Justice, which studies the subject by focusing on the present-day intersections of law, politics, and administration. |
| Please provide a brief description of course goals and learning objectives | After successfully completing this course, students will be able to: o Locate primary and secondary sources through the library website. o Identify transformations in the history of criminal justice in the United States from the early republic to the present. o Relate past events to contemporary conversations about crime and criminal justice reform. o Practice historical methods through evaluation and critique of primary sources. o Connect primary and secondary sources to broader themes in modern American history. o Assemble primary and secondary sources in support of arguments about the past. |
| Describe course assessments | Students will read a variety of types of readings including of chapters of historical monographs, primary sources from history, journal articles, and a short, concise narrative textbook. Reading Responses: Write an informal 500-word essay in response to the primary and secondary source readings. This does not have to be your most polished, elegant, perfect writing. I will provide a prompt for each response that you can use as a jumping off point for your thoughts. You are not obligated to answer it if there is something else you'd like to say about the | reading, such as: What did you learn from this reading? How does it compare to other material we've studied or that you've encountered previously? You can also use the reading responses to make an argument about the readings or a broader topic. Prompts and due dates are posted under the "Assignments" tab in HuskyCT. The number one goal of these assignments is for you to demonstrate that you are engaging with the material and prepared for in-class discussion. The number two goal of these assignments is to ensure that you are gradually preparing for the tests, which will be easier if you are doing the reading. There are five reading responses to choose from; you only need to turn in four. I will only grade the first four you submit. For these reasons, reading responses must be submitted by the start of class on the due date. Late reading responses will not be accepted. Research Paper: To allow you to explore a topic of your choice, you will write a short research paper that expands on one of the topics for the course or explores a topic not discussed in class. You will submit a 2-3 sentence proposal early in the semester to get you started. Your paper will be 5 pages long and should employ at least 3 journal articles and 1 book. You can use 1 source from the syllabus toward your count. It should have an argument expressed in an introduction, body, and conclusion. Citations should be in footnotes using the Chicago Manual of Style. Tests: In historical scholarship, accuracy matters. As such, evaluation in this course includes mastery over content from primary and secondary source readings, films, and lectures. Two blue book exams will ask you to answer a mix of short answer and essay questions. The best way to prepare for the tests is to come to class, take notes, do the reading, study, and do the assignments.

Catalog Description
Surveys the political, legal, and cultural development of the American criminal justice system and its social impact from the early republic to the present. Topics may include: the rise of penitentiaries, convict leasing, prohibition, police brutality, the War on Crime, the death penalty, and drug wars.

Course Description
How do we police and punish crime in a democratic society? This course will explore how the answer to that question has changed over time, and how historians have understood the growth and impact of a carceral system that made the United States the global leader in incarceration. This course traces three interwoven narratives throughout the semester.

The first narrative thread is the political development of criminal justice institutions. How did people in the past address matters of crime and punishment through governance? This segment explores the formation of the carceral state by looking to the institutional development of penitentiaries, the professionalization of police forces, and legislation creating new federalist relationships to wage war on crime, among other carceral statebuilding projects.

The second narrative explores is the ways in which American culture and contexts shapes and influence understandings of criminalization. What actions did people in the past categorize as criminal, how did they construct their laws, and what did it mean to “become” a criminal? The legal and cultural processes through with American citizens and residents came to be criminalized have been foundational in drawing the lines of who is included and who is marginal in American society. Looking to race, class, gender, and sexuality, this narrative considers how the intellectual histories of social science fields such as criminology and eugenics have been brought to bear on the criminal justice system and individuals caught within it, as well as how individuals deemed criminal resisted and contested these categorizations.

The third thread considers the lived experience of crime, policing, and punishment. Why did people make and break laws? What happened to neighborhoods when they were policed? What was it like to live and work in a prison? Drawing upon the methods of social history, this thread considers the social worlds and relationships made in the course of crime, policing, and punishment. The choices people made about why to commit crime and the responses victims and their families made to people who have harmed them, the meanings of everyday responses to policing and punishment, and the dynamics of relationships of people within the carceral state are part of this narrative.

Through a critical exploration of histories of crime, policing, and imprisonment from Reconstruction to the present, topics of study will include police tactics and technologies, convict leasing, prisoner rights movements, juvenile delinquency, drug wars, mass incarceration, and reform and abolition movements and how these topics connect to broader histories of progressivism, urbanization, inequality, and the growth of the American state. These events will be explored through four chronologically organized units:

1) Building New Institutions, covering the period from the early republic to the 1890s
2) Progressive Innovations, covering the 1900s to the 1940s
3) Postwar Reforms, covering the 1950s through the 1970s
4) Mass Incarceration in the Recent Past, covering the 1980s to the present

Through these units, students will explore a variety of methods that will provide models for their own culminating research paper on a topic of their choosing.

Course Objectives

After successfully completing this course, students will be able to:

- Locate primary and secondary sources through the library website.
- Identify transformations in the history of criminal justice in the United States from the early republic to the present.
- Relate past events to contemporary conversations about crime and criminal justice reform.
- Practice historical methods through evaluation and critique of primary sources.
- Connect primary and secondary sources to broader themes in modern American history.
- Assemble primary and secondary sources in support of arguments about the past.

Grade Distribution

- Final Exam 30%
- Reading responses (5): 30%
- Research Paper proposal 5%
- Research Paper: 25%
- Participation: 10%

Reading Responses: Write an informal 500-word essay in response to the primary and secondary source readings. This does not have to be your most polished, elegant, perfect writing. I will provide a prompt for each response that you can use as a jumping off point for your thoughts. You are not obligated to answer it if there is something else you’d like to say about the reading, such as: What did you learn from this reading? How does it compare to other material we’ve studied or that you’ve encountered previously? You can also use the reading responses to make an argument about the readings or a broader topic. Prompts and due dates are posted under the “Assignments” tab in HuskyCT. The number one goal of these assignments is for you to demonstrate that you are engaging with the material and prepared for in-class discussion. The number two goal of these assignments is to ensure that you are gradually preparing for the tests, which will be easier if you are doing the reading. There are five reading responses to choose from; you only need to turn in four. I will only grade the first four you submit. For these reasons, reading responses must be submitted by the start of class on the due date. Late reading responses will not be accepted.

Research Paper: To allow you to explore a topic of your choice, you will write a short research paper that expands on one of the topics for the course or explores a topic not discussed in class. You will submit a 2-3 sentence proposal early in the semester to get you started. Your paper will be 5 pages long and should employ at least 3 journal articles and 1 book. You can use 1 source from the syllabus toward your count. It should have an argument expressed in an introduction, body, and conclusion. Tests: In historical scholarship, accuracy matters. As such, evaluation in this course includes mastery over content from primary and secondary source readings, films, and lectures. Two blue book exams will ask you to answer a mix of short answer and essay questions. The best way to prepare for the tests is to come to class, take notes, do the reading, study, and do the assignments.

A makeup test is not available for the midterm; do not miss it. If you do miss it, you can write a 10-page research paper on a topic determined by the professor. In accordance with UConn policy, students are required to be available for their final exam. If you have a conflict with this time you must obtain official permission to schedule a make-up exam with the Office of Student Support and Advocacy (OSSA). If permission is granted, OSSA will notify the instructor.

Participation: A participation rubric is provided on HuskyCT. Participation means being engaged, not distracted by technology, contributing to discussion, asking questions and coming to office hours if needed.

University & Course Policies:

Grade information: http://catalog.uconn.edu/academic-regulations/grade-information/

Grade conversion: A 93-100, 4.0; A- 90-92, 3.7; B+ 87-89, 3.3; B 83-86, 3.0; B- 80-82, 2.7; C+ 77-79, 2.3; C 73-76, 2.0; C- 70-72, 1.7; D+ 67-69, 1.3; D 63-66, 1.0; D- 60-62, 0.7; F <60, 0.0.

Academic integrity: I expect that you will turn in original work. I will prepare you to act in accordance with the Guidelines for Academic Integrity at the University of Connecticut by teaching you proper methods of citation. You will contact me if you have questions before submitting assignments. You will not plagiarize, copy, steal, cheat, lift, submit work from other classes, or fail to cite; if you do so, you will fail the course. To learn about the onerous process accompanying “academic misconduct”: http://community.uconn.edu/the-student-code-appendix-a/. If you decide to cheat or plagiarize, keep in mind that you are committing to costing yourself, the professor, and a number of people across the University countless hours of their valuable time. Don’t do it.

Students with disabilities: This course follows principles of “universal design” and should be accessible to all students. The Center for Students with Disabilities (CSD) at UConn provides accommodations and services for qualified students with disabilities. If you have a documented disability for which you wish to request academic accommodations and have not contacted the CSD, please do so as soon as possible. The CSD is located in Wilbur Cross, Room 204 and can be reached at (860) 486-2020 or at csd@uconn.edu. Detailed information regarding the accommodations process is also available on their website at www.csd.uconn.edu

Academic freedom: To quote the UConn Student Code, “The ‘spirit of inquiry’ lies at the heart of our community. It is the realization that the act of learning is essential to personal growth. The desire to know and the willingness to explore require the strength to resist the false promises of shortcuts and substitutes in the process of learning. The spirit of inquiry is the passion and the patience to commit oneself to a continual journey toward understanding. Incorporating the spirit of inquiry into one’s life as a student is not easy. It calls for curiosity, stamina, vulnerability, honesty, grace, courage, and integrity. A student needs to look beyond comfortable assumptions in search of new perspectives and seek the very information that might change his or her mind. …The spirit of inquiry can only flourish in an environment of mutual trust and respect.”

http://community.uconn.edu/the-student-code-preamble/

Policy Against Discrimination, Harassment and Related Interpersonal Violence: The University is committed to maintaining an environment free of discrimination or discriminatory harassment directed toward any person or group within its community – students, employees, or visitors. Academic and professional excellence can flourish only when each member of our community is assured an atmosphere of mutual respect. All members of the University community are responsible for the maintenance of an academic and work environment in which people are free to learn and work without fear of discrimination or discriminatory harassment. In addition, inappropriate amorous relationships can undermine the University’s mission when those in positions of authority abuse or appear to abuse their authority. To that end, and in accordance with federal and state law, the University prohibits discrimination and discriminatory harassment, as well as inappropriate amorous relationships, and such behavior will be met with appropriate disciplinary action, up to and including dismissal from the University. Additionally, to protect the campus community, all non-confidential University employees (including faculty) are required to report sexual assaults, intimate partner violence, and/or stalking involving a student that they witness or are told about to the Office of Institutional Equity. The University takes all reports with the utmost seriousness. Please be aware that while the information you provide will remain private, it will not be confidential and will be shared with University officials who can help. More information is available at equity.uconn.edu and titleix.uconn.edu

Copyright: My lectures, notes, handouts, and displays are protected by state common law and federal copyright law. They are my own original expression and I’ve recorded them prior or during my lecture in order to ensure that I obtain copyright protection. Students are authorized to take notes in my class; I will inform you as to whether you are authorized to record my lectures at the beginning of each semester. If you are so authorized to record my lectures, you may not copy this recording or any other material, provide copies of either to anyone else, or make a commercial use of them without prior permission from me. You may not take photographs during class.

Course Schedule

Unit 1: BUILDING NEW INSTITUTIONS

Week 1
Day 1: Syllabus
Day 2: Applying Historical Methods to Carceral Histories

Week 2

Day 1: Punishment in the Early Republic
- Declaration of Independence
- Crime and Punishment, chapters 1

Day 2: The Penitentiary: The Philadelphia and Auburn Systems

Week 3

Day 1: Fugitive Slaves and the Rise of the Police
- Crime and Punishment, ch. 4

Day 2: Frontier Justice and Vengeance in the American West
- Crime and Punishment, ch. 8

Reading Response 1 due

Week 4

Day 1: Convict Labor at New Gate Prison

Day 2: Convict Leasing and Jim Crow
- Slavery by Another Name (film)

Unit 2: PROGRESSIVE INNOVATIONS

Week 5

Day 1: The Criminalization of Black Women in the Urban North
- Hannah Mary Tabbs, ch. 1 & 2

Day 2: Progressive and Eugenicist Approaches to Crime

Reading Response 2 due

Week 6

Day 1: Police Professionalization and Brutality
- Mark Twain, “The Stolen White Elephant,” 1882

Day 2: Hobos in Jail
- Excerpts from Nels Anderson, The Hobo

Research Paper proposal due
Week 7
Day 1: Women in Jail
- Hannah Mary Tabbs, ch. 4

Day 2: Prohibition and the Federal Crime Control Apparatus
- Crime and Punishment, ch. 12

Week 8
Day 1: Incarceration and Sterilization of Children

Day 2: The Development of the Criminal Courts
- Hannah Mary Tabbs, ch. 5 & 6

Reading Response 3 due

Unit 3: POSTWAR REFORMS

Week 9
Day 1: Prison Scandals and Reform
- Brian Sarnacki, “‘In the Biting Stage’: The 1955 Nebraska State Penitentiary Riots and Violent Prison Activism,” Nebraska History (Spring 2015), 3-13.

Day 2: Police, Crime, and the Civil Rights Movement
- Fannie Lou Hamer, Speech at the 1964 Democratic National Convention.

Week 10
Day 1: The Rights Revolution
- Crime and Punishment, ch. 14

Reading Response 4 due

Day 2: The War on Crime

Week 11
Day 1: Challenging Policing Practices

Day 2: Attica Prison Rebellion and Prisoner Rights

Week 12

Day 1: The Death Penalty
- Randall McGowen, “Through the Wrong End of the Telescope: History, the Death Penalty, and the American Experience,” in America’s Death Penalty.
- Greggs v. Georgia (1975)

Reading Response 5 due

Unit 4: MASS INCARCERATION IN THE RECENT PAST

Day 2: Victims Rights and Carceral Feminism
- Crime and Punishment, ch. 18

Week 13

Day 1: War on Drugs
- 48 Hours on Crack Street (1986) (film)

Research Paper Due

Day 2: Queering the Carceral State

Week 14

Day 1: Superpredators and the Supermax
- Selections from Kermit Reiter, 24/7

Day 2: Reform and Abolition
- Vera Institute, “Incarceration’s Front Door,” 2016.

Final Exam TBD

2018-62 Structural Biology and Biophysics Revise major

UCONN COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS AND SCIENCES

Proposal to Change a Major
Last revised: September 24, 2013
Existing Catalog Description of Major
 Structural Biology and Biophysics
This B.S. program emphasizes the physical and chemical foundations of molecular biology.
The following courses at the 1000-level are prerequisites for the major:
- BIOL 1107
- CHEM 1127Q and 1128Q or CHEM 1147Q and 1148Q or CHEM 1124Q, 1125Q and 1126Q
- MATH 1131Q and 1132Q
- PHYS 1401Q and 1402Q or PHYS 1601Q and 1602Q or PHYS 1201Q and 1202Q

A total of 36 credits at the 2000-level or above from the following courses are required for the major:
Required courses
- MATH 2110Q or 2130Q; MATH 2410Q or 2420Q;
- CHEM 2443 and 2444; CHEM 3563 and 3564; CHEM 2445 or 3565W
- MCB 3010 or 2000 and 4026W; MCB 4008 or 5038 or Special Topics: MCB 3895 (with Biophysics Program approval); MCB 4009
Recommended courses
- MCB 2210, 2410, 3413, 2610, 3201, 3412, 3421, 3617, 3899, 4026W, 4997W, 5035;
- CHEM 3332, 4551;
- CSE 1100;
- MATH 3210

To satisfy the writing in the major and information literacy competency requirements, all students must take one of the following courses: MCB 3841W, 4026W, 4997W; CHEM 3170W, 4196W; or any W course approved for this major.

Justification
1. Reasons for changing the major:
   Change #1: Removing PHYS 1201Q and 1202Q from the acceptable general physics requirements for this course. The Physical Chemistry series required for this major (CHEM 3563-3564) requires physics with calculus as a prerequisite. The physics series PHYS 1401Q-1402Q and PHYS 1601Q-1602Q both involve concepts in calculus. However, the PHYS 1201Q-1202Q does not involve calculus, and does not prepare students for the CHEM 3563-3564 series. Removal of this physics series is necessary to clarify which Physics series students should take if they are considering the SBB major.
   Change #2: Addition of MCB 3007 as an acceptable alternative to CHEM 3564. Both CHEM 3564 and MCB 3007 involve quantitative analyses of molecular systems. Whereas CHEM 3564 covers more classic topics of physical chemistry (quantum mechanics, atomic and molecular orbital theory, molecular spectroscopy), MCB 3007 covers concepts such as diffusion, intermolecular forces, and kinetics that are more directly relevant to biological systems. Thus, either course meets the requirements for a second class of a physical chemistry series for the SBB major.

2. Effects on students: Change #1: With only rare exceptions, all students pursuing the SBB major have historically taken physics with calculus. Therefore, removal of PHYS 1201Q-1202Q from the prerequisite list is a formality that will have no effect on the vast majority of students in the major.

Change #2: Accepting both MCB 3007 and CHEM 3564 as permissible courses for the second half of the physical chemistry series for the SBB major will benefit students pursuing the major by allowing academic freedom to take a more classic physical chemistry or a more biologically-oriented course.

3. Effects on other departments:  none
4. Effects on regional campuses: none
5. Dates approved by

Plan of Study
and introduce them to careers involving communication.

The major examines communication at multiple levels of society and in different settings, including interpersonal, nonverbal, organizational, intercultural, and international communication, as well as through different media, such as mass media, social media, and other new communication technologies. Training in the basic theories, principles, best practices, and current research methods of communication can qualify students for a variety of communications and media industry positions in business, advertising, public relations, marketing, digital media production, government/politics, and promotion.

The Communication Department offers applied and theory courses:

- Applied courses emphasize the development of professional skills. Applied courses include the following: COMM 2100, 2940, 4800, 4820, 4940, 4991, and 4992. Applied courses are optional, although they are highly recommended for a variety of career paths.
- Theory courses provide the foundational concepts and principles for the study of communication. A strong theoretical base prepares students to adapt to future changes in the communication landscape. Theory courses constitute the remaining COMM courses at the 2000 level or above, including the Core courses and COMM 3000Q.

A major in Communication requires completion of the following:

9. Introductory courses: COMM 1000, 1100, and 1300. Students must have a grade of “C” or better in COMM 1000. Students in the Communication major should complete these courses by the end of sophomore year, if possible.

10. Total credits of upper division communication courses: Students must complete a minimum of 24 credits in Communication at the 2000 level or above (typically eight COMM courses). Note that many students take more than the minimum of 24 credits in communication, which may consist of additional theory and/or applied classes.

11. Research methods: COMM 3000Q. Students double majoring in Psychological Sciences and Communication may substitute PSYC 2100WQ for COMM 3000Q, but will need to complete a third elective course in Communication to meet the minimum of 24 credits of upper-level Communication courses required for the major (see number 7).

12. Writing-intensive course: At least one W course in the major.

13. Core courses: At least two of the following Core courses: COMM 3100, 3200, 3300.

14. Theory courses: At least two additional theory courses. If students take a third core communication course, it will count toward this requirement. (Applied courses do not count toward this requirement.)

15. Electives: Two more applied or theory courses at a minimum, in order to complete the minimum of 24 credits in communication.

16. Related Group Requirement: Students must complete an additional 12 credits of coursework outside of Communication at the 2000 level or above. The department maintains a list of courses pre-approved as satisfying the related requirement (see the department website). Courses that do not appear on the list must be approved by a
Internship
All students are encouraged to do at least one internship (COMM 4991). Internships can be taken during the academic year or summer. Students must have completed 12 credits in Communication courses at the 2000 level or above to be eligible to register for the course and receive internship credit. An internship taken for three credits counts as one applied class.

Undergraduate Research
The Department encourages students to participate in its research activities, such as the research practicum (COMM 4992).

Information Literacy
To satisfy the information literacy competency, all students must pass COMM 1000, 1100, and 3000Q. Other courses that will further enhance competency in information literacy include COMM 1300, 3100, 3103, 3200, 3300, 3321, 3400, 3450, 3600, 4089, 4100, 4120, 4220W, 4230, 4320, 4330, 4410W, 4450W, 4451W, 4460, 4500, and 4620.

Writing courses
To satisfy the writing in the major requirement, students must pass at least one course from COMM 2310W, 4220W, 4410W, 4450W, 4451W, 4660W, 4930W, 4996W, or any 2000-level or above W course approved for this major. For students interested in media and public relations careers, journalism courses are recommended for additional writing competency.

Minor in Communication
A minor in Communication is described in the Minors section.

Double majors and dual/multiple degrees
Students are encouraged to meet with a Communication advisor to discuss ways to integrate a major in Communication with other majors and degrees.

Proposed Catalog Description of Major
The Department of Communication offers an undergraduate major in Communication. The Communication major is designed to educate students about the social science of communication and introduce them to careers involving communication.

The major examines communication at multiple levels of society and in different settings, including interpersonal, nonverbal, organizational, intercultural, and international communication, as well as through different media, such as mass media, social media, and other new communication technologies. 10 Total credits of upper division communication courses: Students must complete a minimum of 24 credits in Communication at the 2000 level or above (typically eight COMM courses). Note that many students take more than the minimum of 24 credits in communication, which may consist of additional theory and/or applied classes.

11 Research methods: COMM 3000Q. Students double majoring in Psychological Sciences and Communication may substitute PSYC 2100WQ for COMM 3000Q, but will need to complete a third elective course in Communication to meet the minimum of 24 credits of upper-level Communication courses required for the major (see number 7).

12 Writing-intensive course: At least one W course in the major.

13 Core courses: At least two of the following Core courses: COMM 3100, 3200, 3300.

14 Theory courses: At least two additional theory courses. If students take a third core communication course, it will count toward this requirement. (Applied courses do not count toward this requirement.)

15 Electives: Two more applied or theory courses at a minimum, in order to complete the minimum of 24 credits in communication.

16 Related Group Requirement: Students must complete an additional 12 credits of coursework outside of Communication at the 2000 level or above. The department maintains a list of courses pre-approved as satisfying the related requirement (see the department website). Courses that do not appear on the list must be approved by a Communication advisor.

Internship
All students are encouraged to do at least one internship (COMM 4991). Internships can be taken during the academic year or summer. Students must have completed 12 credits in Communication courses at the 2000 level or above to be eligible to register for the course and receive internship credit. An internship taken for three credits counts as one applied class.

Undergraduate Research
The Department encourages students to participate in its research activities, such as the research practicum (COMM 4992).

Information Literacy
To satisfy the information literacy competency, all students must pass COMM 1000, 1100, and 3000Q. Other courses that will further enhance competency in information literacy include COMM 1300, 3100, 3103, 3200, 3300, 3321, 3400, 3450, 3600, 4089, 4100, 4120, 4220W, 4230, 4320, 4330, 4410W, 4450W, 4451W, 4460, 4500, and 4620.

Writing courses
To satisfy the writing in the major requirement, students must pass at least one course from COMM 2310W, 4220W, 4410W, 4450W, 4451W, 4660W, 4930W, 4996W, or any 2000-level or above W course approved for this major. For students interested in media and public relations careers, journalism courses are recommended for additional writing competency.

Minor in Communication
A minor in Communication is described in the Minors section.

Double majors and dual/multiple degrees
Students are encouraged to meet with a Communication advisor to discuss ways to integrate a major in Communication with other majors and degrees.

Justification
1. Reasons for changing the major: The “C or better in COMM 1000” requirement for COMM majors was originally intended as a restrictive measure when the program was smaller, but has put undue burden on certain majors who do not score well in the introductory course who often later re-take the course in order to graduate. The faculty has decided that given the rigor of the introductory course at this point in time and the data about its predictive power for student success in the major, an arbitrary cutoff at the mark of C is no longer a useful determinant of suitability for majoring in Communication. The secondary change adds COMM 2110 (approved Fall 2017) to the list of applied course offerings in the department.
2. Effects on students: This will make it easier for a small minority of students (who score below a C in COMM 1000 and are interested in the field) to declare a Communication major.
3. Effects on other departments: None anticipated.
4. Effects on regional campuses: None anticipated.
5. Dates approved by Department Curriculum Committee: 1/24/18

Plan of Study
If the proposed change modifies the requirements of the major, then attach a revised "Major Plan of Study" form to your submission email.

Department of Communication
Catalog Year 2018 – Present

Name of Student _____________________________________________________________ PeopleSoft ID ________________
E-Mail _____________________________________________________________________ Phone ________________

Month/Year you expect to complete degree requirements ____ May ____ August ____ December of 20______

Students are ultimately held responsible for meeting all University and degree requirements. Refer to the Undergraduate Catalog for specific details of course requirements, descriptions, and restrictions: www.catalog.uconn.edu

An approved final plan of study must be filed with Degree Audit, on-line (via StudentAdmin), during the first 4 weeks of classes of the semester in which the student expects to graduate. Once filed with the Degree Audit, changes may be made only with consent of the major advisor.

Required Courses:  _____ COMM 1000 The Process of Communication  _____ COMM 1100 Principles of Public Speaking

_____ COMM 1300 Mass Communication Systems

The Major Group
 Major courses must be numbered at the 2000-level or above.
 At least 24 credits in COMM (typically eight courses) are required.
 COMM courses are divided into:
   Applied Courses: COMM 2100, COMM 2110, COMM 2940, COMM 4800, COMM 4820, COMM 4940, COMM 4991, and COMM 4992.
   Theory Courses: all other COMM courses numbered at the 2000-level or above.
 We strongly recommend that everyone take an internship, COMM 4991.
 Any further COMM courses may be taken to fulfill the 45-credit rule or to count toward 120 credits for graduation.

Department requirements for the Major Group are as follows:

NOTES: 1) Bold numbers indicate the courses may "double-dip"; that is two courses in CA 1, 2, or 3 can also be used to fulfill a CA 4 requirement. Please note that CA 1 is the only CA where two courses may be used to fulfill CA 4. 2) If a course is offered as both W and non-W, either will fulfill the General Requirements. Such courses are shown with a slash (/) before the W. 3) * = foreign language pre-requisite/taught in foreign language. 4) Courses in CA 1, 2, & 3 must be taken in at least 6 different academic units. 5) Students must complete all content areas and competencies to fulfill the CLAS general education requirement.
Proposal to Change an Existing Course
Last revised: September 24, 2013

1. Date: January 17, 2018
2. Department requesting this course: Geoscience
3. Nature of Proposed Change:

Overdue change of old pre-requisites to ones following a sweeping overhaul of our 1000-level curriculum.

4. Effective Date (semester, year): Fall, 2018

(Consult Registrar’s change catalog site to determine earliest possible effective date. If a later date is desired, indicate here.)

Current Catalog Copy

3010. Earth History and Global Change
(Formerly offered as GEOL 3010.) Three credits. Two class periods and one 3-hour laboratory period. Prerequisite: GSCI 1050; or GSCI 1051 and 1052.
Reconstruction of earth history from geological data. Processes and events responsible for the stratigraphic record, and techniques used to decipher it. An integrated survey of earth history. One or more weekend field trips may be required.

3020. Earth Surface Processes

Prerequisite: GSCI 1050; or GSCI 1051 and 1052.

Processes responsible for the formation of the unconsolidated materials, landforms, and soils which constitute the Earth’s surface. Introduction to surface-water and groundwater hydrology, geological hazards and the effects of climatic change. One or more weekend field trips may be required.

3030. Earth Structure

Prerequisite: GSCI 1050; or GSCI 1051 and 1052.

Structure and composition of the earth, including a survey of plate tectonics and crustal evolution. Gravitational, thermal and tectonic processes associated with the earth’s surface and interior. One or more weekend field trips may be required.

3040. Earth Materials

Prerequisite: GSCI 1050; or GSCI 1051 and 1052. Recommended preparation: CHEM 1124–1126 or 1127 and 1128.

Principles of symmetry and crystal chemistry and the identification of minerals by hand sample, petrographic and x-ray methods. Description of the mineralogy and texture of igneous, sedimentary and metamorphic rocks and the application of contemporary petrogenetic models to the interpretation of the geologic environments they record. One or more weekend field trips may be required.

4110. Sedimentology

Prerequisite: GSCI 1050; or GSCI 1051 and 1052. Recommended preparation: GSCI 3020.

Basic principles of sedimentology with an emphasis on the description of sedimentary texture and structure. Physicochemical and biological processes that characterize depositional environments. Diagenesis. Examination of modern systems to interpret ancient sedimentary environments. One or more weekend field trips may be required.

4120. Paleobiology

(Also offered as EEB 4120.) (Formerly offered as GEOL 4120.) Four credits. Three class periods and one 3-hour laboratory period. Prerequisite: GSCI 1050; or GSCI 1051 and 1052; or BIOL 1108.

Ancient life, including the preservation of organisms as fossils, evolution, ecology, geobiology, biostratigraphy, and major events in the history of life. Includes microorganisms, animals, and plants.
4130. Geomicrobiology
Three credits. Prerequisites: GSCI 1050; or GSCI 1051 and 1052; or BIOL 1108 or instructor consent. Recommended preparation: GSCI 3010, MCB 2610. Dupraz, Visscher
Microbial diversity and biogeochemistry, microbe-mineral interactions, fossil record, atmospheric record, microbialites, and research methodology in geomicrobiology. A weekend field trip may be required.

4735. Introduction to Ground-Water Hydrology
(Formerly offered as GEOL 4735.) (Also offered as NRE 4135.) Four credits. Three class periods and one 3-hour laboratory for which occasional field trips will be substituted. Prerequisite: GSCI 1050; or GSCI 1051 and 1052; or instructor consent; open to juniors or higher. Robbins
Basic hydrologic principles with emphasis on ground water flow and quality, geologic relationships, quantitative analysis and field methods.

Proposed Catalog Copy
(See information in the "Add a course" form if you have any questions regarding specific items.)

3010. Earth History and Global Change
(Formerly offered as GEOL 3010.) Three credits. Two class periods and one 3-hour laboratory period. Prerequisite: GSCI 1050 or both GSCI 1052 and one of GSCI 1010 or GSCI 1051 or GSCI 1055 or GSCI 1070 or GEOG 1070.
Reconstruction of earth history from geological data. Processes and events responsible for the stratigraphic record, and techniques used to decipher it. An integrated survey of earth history. One or more weekend field trips may be required.

3020. Earth Surface Processes
(Formerly offered as GEOL 3020.) Three credits. Two class periods and one 3-hour laboratory period. Prerequisite: GSCI 1050 or both GSCI 1052 and one of GSCI 1010 or GSCI 1051 or GSCI 1055 or GSCI 1070 or GEOG 1070.
Processes responsible for the formation of the unconsolidated materials, landforms, and soils which constitute the Earth’s surface. Introduction to surface-water and groundwater hydrology, geological hazards and the effects of climatic change. One or more weekend field trips may be required.

Three credits. Prerequisites: GSCI 1050 or both GSCI 1052 and one of GSCI 1010 or GSCI 1051 or GSCI 1055 or GSCI 1070 or GEOG 1070.; or BIOL 1108 or instructor consent. Recommended preparation: GSCI 3010, MCB 2610. Dupraz, Visscher

Microbial diversity and biogeochemistry, microbe-mineral interactions, fossil record, atmospheric record, microbialites, and research methodology in geomicrobiology. A weekend field trip may be required.

Justification

1. Reasons for changing this course:
We recently revised our introductory curriculum to make it more flexible for staff and students, as well as increase its quality and consistency. We now need to change the upper division pre-requisites to reflect the improvements. For the 8 courses above the change is identical; from:

GSCI 1050; or GSCI 1051 and 1052.

GSCI 1050 or both GSCI 1052 and one of GSCI 1010 or GSCI 1051 or GSCI 1055 or GSCI 1070 or GEOG 1070.

2. Effect on Department’s curriculum:

This follow-up will increase the efficiency of students registering for upper division GSCI courses who took GSCI 1010+1052, 1055+1052 and 1070+1052, instead of either 1050 or 1051+1052.

3. Other departments consulted:

None

4. Effects on other departments:

None

5. Effects on regional campuses:

None

6. Staffing:

None

General Education

If the course is approved, or is being proposed for university general education Content Area 1 (Arts and Humanities), then the course should be added to a CLAS general education area (A-E). It is recommended that courses be listed in one and only one of these areas (A-E).

For a Content Area 1 course:

a. Provide justification for inclusion in Content Area 1:
b. Specify a CLAS area, A-E: ____
c. Provide justification for inclusion in CLAS area, A-E:
(Please consult CLAS guidelines for areas A-E.)

2018-71   ILCS   Revise major

Proposal to Change a Major
Last revised: September 24, 2013

1. Date: 4-11-2016
2. Department or Program: LCL/Italian
3. Title of Major: Italian Literary and Cultural Studies
4. Effective Date (semester, year): Fall 2016
   (Consult Registrar’s change catalog site to determine earliest possible effective date. If a later date is desired, indicate here.)
5. Nature of change: add an internship course

Existing Catalog Description of Major
This major focuses on Italian literary studies but also allows students to take advanced coursework in Italian language, communication, and cultural studies. (All 3000-level coursework on Italian cinema may also be counted towards the minor in Film Studies). Italian courses comprise two main groups:

Group 1 (Literature)

ILCS 3237, 3245, 3246, 3247, 3250, 3251, 3253, 3254, 3255W, 3256, 3261, 3262, 3293, 3295, 3298, 4279.

Group 2 (Language, Communication, and Culture)

ILCS 3239, 3240, 3255W, 3258W, 3259, 3260W, 3270, 3293, 3295, 3298, 4279.

For the major in Italian, students must take 24 credits of ILCS courses at the 2000 level or above and according to the following guidelines:

A. At least one composition course: ILCS 3239 or 3240 or 3293.
B. One introductory or literary survey course: ILCS 3245, 3246, 3247, 3250, 3251, 3256, 3261, 3262, 3293, 3295, 3298.
C. Six additional courses taken from Groups 1 or 2 (which are not used to satisfy requirements A or B). No more than four of these six courses may be taken from the same group.
D. All majors must take one W course as part of the 24 required Italian credits. A second W course may be counted toward the major with the consent of the advisor. (One W course taken outside of ILCS is also mandatory for all majors, as per UConn’s university-wide W course requirements.)
E. 12 additional related credits are required in 2000-, 3000- and 4000-level related courses from programs other than Italian. These may include:
   o Courses in any modern or classical language.
   o Any English, Linguistics, or Philosophy course.
   o Any Communication Sciences course that is directly related to second language acquisition or the Italian/Italian-American communities.
   o Any History, Political Science, Art History, Anthropology, Sociology, Economics, or Geography course that deals with Italy, Italians, or Italian-Americans.
   o Any course that does not meet these specific requirements should be approved by the advisor.
F. Education Abroad in Italy: Students are strongly encouraged to participate in a variety of UConn-sponsored Education Abroad programs (and also have the option of enrolling in non-sponsored programs). In either case, students should consult with the ILCS faculty to determine which courses will receive credits. Students who enroll in study abroad programs not sponsored by UConn do not necessarily receive UConn credits for their coursework.

In addition, the following rules apply:

- A minimum of 12 of the major credits must consist of Italian courses taken in residence.
- Up to 12 credits may be met by ILCS 3293, with the consent of the advisor. Only 6 may be transfer credits.
- UConn’s Early College Experience courses may be counted towards the major.
- A single course cannot satisfy more than one requirement.

To satisfy the writing in the major and information literacy competencies, students must complete ILCS 3255W, 3258W, or 3460W.

Proposed Catalog Description of Major

This major focuses on Italian literary studies but also allows students to take advanced coursework in Italian language, communication, and cultural studies. (All 3000-level coursework on Italian cinema may also be counted towards the minor in Film Studies). Italian courses comprise two main groups:
Group 1 (Literature)

ILCS 3237, 3245, 3246, 3247, 3250, 3251, 3253, 3254, 3255W, 3256, 3261, 3262, 3293, 3295, 3298, 4279.

Group 2 (Language, Communication, and Culture)

ILCS 3239, 3240, 3255W, 3258W, 3259, 3260W, 3270, 3291, 3293, 3295, 3298, 4279.

For the major in Italian, students must take 24 credits of ILCS courses at the 2000 level or above and according to the following guidelines:

M. At least one composition course: ILCS 3239 or 3240 or 3293.

N. One introductory or literary survey course: ILCS 3245, 3246, 3247, 3250, 3251, 3256, 3261, 3262, 3293, 3295, 3298.

O. Six additional courses taken from Groups 1 or 2 (which are not used to satisfy requirements A or B). No more than four of these six courses may be taken from the same group.

P. All majors must take one W course as part of the 24 required Italian credits. A second W course may be counted toward the major with the consent of the advisor. (One W course taken outside of ILCS is also mandatory for all majors, as per UConn’s university-wide W course requirements.)

Q. 12 additional related credits are required in 2000-, 3000- and 4000-level related courses from programs other than Italian. These may include:

- Courses in any modern or classical language.
- Any English, Linguistics, or Philosophy course.
- Any Communication Sciences course that is directly related to second language acquisition or the Italian/Italian-American communities.
- Any History, Political Science, Art History, Anthropology, Sociology, Economics, or Geography course that deals with Italy, Italians, or Italian-Americans.
- Any course that does not meet these specific requirements should be approved by the advisor.

R. Education Abroad in Italy: Students are strongly encouraged to participate in a variety of UConn-sponsored Education Abroad programs (and also have the option of enrolling in non-sponsored programs). - A single course cannot satisfy more than one requirement.

To satisfy the writing in the major and information literacy competencies, students must complete ILCS 3293W, 3258W, or 3460W.

Justification

1. Reasons for changing the major: to allow Italian majors the option to do an internship as part of their coursework towards their degree
2. Effects on students: a new opportunity for professional formation
3. Effects on other departments: none
4. Effects on regional campuses: none

Proposal to Change a Major

1. Date: 11/27/17
2. Department or Program: Sociology
3. Title of Major: Sociology
4. Effective Date (semester, year): Summer 2018
   (Consult Registrar’s change catalog site to determine earliest possible effective date. If a later date is desired, indicate here.)
5. Nature of change: To specify the number of transfer credits that can be applied to the major.

Existing Catalog Description of Major

Sociology is an analytic discipline concerned with understanding people as creators of, and participants in, society. The field is broadly concerned with the study of modern society and its social organizations, institutions, groups, and social roles. Sociologists study social influences on human behavior, such as sexuality, ethnic identity, and religious belief, and how individuals become members of families and communities. The field is also concerned with social problems, especially all forms of prejudice, discrimination, and inequality, and with poverty, crime, violence, and the threatened environment. Sociologists emphasize sources of social problems in the organization of society, public policies for their alleviation, and today’s questions of social justice. Finally, they study how individuals, both alone and working in groups, can change the society in which they live. A major in sociology opens many doors for careers and is excellent background for advanced training in a variety of other fields.

At least 24 credits of SOCI courses at the 2000-level or above are required:

Three specific courses are required of all majors: SOCI 3201, 3211Q, 3251. (Note: Students must take SOCI 1001, 1251, 1501, or 1701 prior to taking SOCI 3201, 3211Q, and 3251.)

Passing SOCI 3201 satisfies the information literacy competency. The writing in the major requirement can be satisfied by passing any 2000 or 3000-level W course in Sociology.

Twelve additional credits (usually four courses) must be taken from any 2000-level or above courses offered by the department, including those listed above. (Note: No more than three credits of SOCI 3990 can apply to the major).

A minor in Sociology is described in the Minors section.

A maximum of eleven 2000-level or above transfer credits in sociology may count toward the major with department approval.

Justification
1. Reasons for changing the major: CLAS requires that students earn the majority of 2000-level or higher courses for their major at UConn. This rule has always applied to Sociology majors. We are not changing the number of transfer credits a Sociology major can apply to their major, we are simply listing this rule in the catalog. In doing so, transfer courses will only need department approval and will no longer need dean’s level approval in order to count towards the Sociology major as long as they do not exceed 11 credits.

2. Effects on students: Students are more likely to be aware of how many transfer credits can count toward the Sociology major. Students will need one less level or approval in order to apply 11 or fewer transfer credits towards the Sociology major.

3. Effects on other departments: None.

4. Effects on regional campuses: None.

   (Consult Registrar’s change catalog site to determine earliest possible effective date. If a later date is desired, indicate here.)
Existing Catalog Description of Minor
Fifteen hours of course work in Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies courses or cross referenced courses, of which one course may be at the 1000 level.

Not more than two courses may be counted toward both the minor and the major.

Not more than six credits for the Internship Program may be applied to the minor.

Proposed Catalog Description of Minor
The Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies Program is a flexible interdisciplinary academic program devoted to pursuit of knowledge concerning women and the critical analysis of the production of gender and sexuality within transnational and cross-cultural contexts. Combining the methods and insights of traditional academic disciplines with the special insights of feminist studies, gender studies, and sexuality studies, our courses focus on understanding the origins of and changes in diverse cultural and social arrangements.

Students seeking a minor in Women’s, Gender, and Sexuality Studies must complete eighteen credits of course work, at least fifteen of which must be at the 2000 level or higher, in WGSS courses, those cross listed with WGSS, and/or courses approved by the director of WGSS.

Not more than two courses may be counted toward both the minor and the major.

Not more than six credits for the Internship Program may be applied to the minor.

Justification
1. Reasons for changing the minor: Does not currently meet CLAS standards
2. Effects on students: They will have to take 3 more credits at the 2000 level.
3. Effects on other departments: none
4. Effects on regional campuses: none

3. Title of Major: Bachelor of Science in Geography
4. Effective Date (semester, year): Spring, 2017
   (Consult Registrar’s change catalog site to determine earliest possible effective date. If a later date is desired, indicate here.)
5. Nature of change: Update the requirements of the BS for new classes in the department and to make the program more flexible for students wishing to concentrate either in physical geography or technical/methods-focused geography.

Existing Catalog Description of Major
The B.S. degree requires 31 credits in 2000 or higher level geography courses and 12 credits of closely related course work in other departments. B.S. majors must complete a basic core of 6 courses: GEOG 2100, 2300, 2500, 2505, 3500Q, 3510, and one methods course (choice of GEOG 2510, 3110, 3505) and 6 additional credits, including at least one “W” course in geography chosen in consultation with their departmental advisor.

Proposed Catalog Description of Major
The B.S. degree requires 31 credits in 2000 or higher level geography courses and 12 credits of closely related course work in other departments. B.S. majors must complete a basic core of 3 courses: GEOG 2100 or 2200, 2300, and 2500. B.S. majors must take 21 additional credits in Geography, including at least four courses from either “methods” courses (choice of GEOG 2505, 2410, 2510, 3420, 3500Q, 3505, 3510, 4230, 4515, or 4520), or “physical” courses (choice of 2310, 3310, 3400, 3410, 3420, 3505, 4230, or 4300), in addition to one “W” course, in consultation with their departmental advisor.

Justification
1. Reasons for changing the major: The faculty composition of the Geography Department is changing, particularly to include more faculty on the physical geography side of the department. We want to expand the B.S. to allow students to concentrate their degree on geographical technology and methods or physical geography.
2. Effects on students: The students interested in the B.S. degree have been asking for more flexibility to pursue either a technical/methods-based degree or a physical geography based degree. This proposal adds flexibility for students while maintaining the rigor of the B.S. program.
3. Effects on other departments: There should be no significant effect on other departments. Environmental Science used to have a B.S. with a focus in Geography. Since Environmental Science changed their degree to not have concentrations by affiliated department, it is possible that students who might otherwise have gone into that concentration will instead do this B.S. degree.
4. Effects on regional campuses: None
5. Dates approved by

Proposal to Change a Minor
Last revised: September 24, 2013

1. Date: 25 November 2017
2. Department or Program: Geography
3. Title of Minor: GIS
4. Effective Date (semester, year): ASAP
(Consult Registrar’s change catalog site to determine earliest possible effective date. If a later date is desired, indicate here.)

5. Nature of change: Expand the range of options available to students to include internships and independent study (if the experiences were relevant to GIS) to make it easier for students to complete the minor.

Existing Catalog Description of Minor

The minor consists of courses that concern spatial data acquisition, evaluation, manipulation, and analysis. Students electing this minor must complete at least fifteen credits from the following:

4. Two required courses: GEOG 2500 and 2505.
5. One of the following: GEOG 3500Q, 3510.
6. One of the following: ECON 2326; GEOG 2410, 2510, 3110, 4130, 4230; GEOG/MARN 3505; MATH 3710; STAT 2215Q.

Geography majors may not use any Geography course to fulfill both major and minor requirements.

Proposed Catalog Description of Minor

The minor consists of courses that concern spatial data acquisition, evaluation, manipulation, and analysis. Students electing this minor must complete at least fifteen credits from the following:

3. Two required courses: GEOG 2500 (4 credits) and 2505 (4 credits)
4. At least 7 credits from the following courses, at least 3 in GEOG:
   ECON 2326
   GEOG 2410
   GEOG 2510
   GEOG 3110
   GEOG 3500Q
   GEOG 3510
   GEOG 4090 (with permission)
   GEOG 4095 (with permission)
   GEOG 4099 (with permission)
   GEOG 4130
   GEOG/GSCI 4230
   GEOG 4515
   GEOG/MARN 3505
   MATH 3710
   STAT 2215Q

Geography majors may not use any Geography course to fulfill both major and minor requirements.

Justification

1. Reasons for changing the minor: Allow Independent Study and Internship experiences (if that have focused on GIS) to be applicable to the minor
2. Effects on students: Makes the minor easier for them to complete
3. Effects on other departments: Improves ability of students to take minor
4. Effects on regional campuses: Improves ability of students to take minor
5. Dates approved by
   - Department Curriculum Committee: 11/21/17
   - Department Faculty: 11/25/17
6. Name, Phone Number, and e-mail address of principal contact person:

Plan of Study

If the proposed change modifies the requirements of the Minor, then attach a revised "Minor Plan of Study" form to your submission email as a separate document. The plan of study should include the following information:

A. Near the top of the form:

NOTE: Completion of a minor requires that a student earn a C (2.0) or better in each of the required courses for that minor. A maximum of 3 credits towards the minor may be transfer credits of courses equivalent to University of Connecticut courses. Substitutions are not possible for required courses in a minor.

B. At the bottom of the form:

This plan is drawn up to meet the requirements for the Minor in Geographic Science as outlined in the ____________ (semester/year) catalog.

Expected date for meeting degree requirements: __________

This plan, approved and signed, must be filed with the Degree Auditor’s Office and the Department of Geography no later than the fourth week of classes of the semester in which the student expects to graduate.

Completion of a minor requires that a student earn a C (2.0) grade or better in each of the required courses for that minor. A maximum of 3 credits toward the minor may be transfer credits of courses equivalent to University of Connecticut courses. Substitutions are not possible for required courses in a minor due to University rule.

Existing Catalog Description of Major

Environmental Studies

The Environmental Studies major is an interdisciplinary program designed to provide students with the knowledge, skills, and perspectives needed to understand the interactions between human society and the environment. Understanding the ethical and cultural dimensions of our relationship with the environment, as well as the challenges of protecting it, requires insights from multiple perspectives, including the humanities, the social sciences, and the natural sciences. Core courses in the major ensure familiarity with basic principles from these three areas. With this shared core of knowledge, majors will focus their studies on an area of special interest, taking electives and related courses that allow greater specialization. Among the many possibilities are environmental sustainability, issues concerning public policy and environmental justice, and the literary and philosophical legacy of human encounters with the non-human world. A capstone course will allow each student to research a distinct perspective on a contemporary environmental issue. A major in Environmental Studies might lead to a career in a variety of fields, including public policy, environmental education, eco-tourism, marketing or consulting, journalism, or advocacy.

The major leads to a Bachelor of Arts degree in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences (CLAS) or the College of Agriculture, Health and Natural Resources (CANR). The student’s choice of colleges should be made in consultation with faculty and advisors based upon the student’s interests and career goals.

Requirements:

Introductory Courses. All majors must take four introductory courses:

- EVST 1000
- NRE 1000, GEOG 2300, GSCI 1050 or GSCI 1051
- BIOL 1102 or, for those seeking a more advanced background, BIOL 1108
- STATS 1000Q or STATS 1100Q or equivalent

Core Courses (18 credits). All majors must take 2 of the following courses from each core. Students cannot apply more than one course per department to count within a particular core. Additional core courses taken in the same department can be applied to the additional major requirements beyond the core requirements.

Humanities Core

- PHIL 3216/W; GERM 2400; HIST 3540 or HIST 3542 or HIST 2210;
- ENGL 3240 or ENGL 3635 or ENGL 3715 or JOUR 3046

Social Sciences Core

- ARE 3434 or ARE 4462 or ECON 3466; GEOG 2400; NRE 3000: NRE 3245; POLS/EVST 3412; SOCI 2701 or SOCI 2709W

Natural Science Core

- EEB 2208, GEOG 3400, AH 3175, GSCI 3010; NRE 4170
EVST 4000W: Capstone Research Project (3 credits).

All majors must complete a capstone research project, which fulfills the Writing in the Major and the Information Literacy requirements for the major.

In addition, environmental studies majors in CLAS must take 9 credits of electives at the 2000 level or above, plus an additional 12 credits of related courses, approved by the student’s advisor. These courses must be designed to form a coherent set of additional courses that will provide the student with a focus or additional depth in an area of interest related to the major. They must be chosen in consultation with the student’s faculty advisor and be approved by the advisor. Courses listed above that are not used to meet the core requirements may be used to meet this requirement.

Total Credits (2000-level or above) 30, plus 12 credits of related courses.

Other areas of recommended preparation (not required)

Physical Science: CHEM 1122, 1127Q; PHYS 1030Q/1035Q.
Earth Science: GSCI/GEOG 1070; MARN 1002/1003
Economics: ARE 1110, 1150; ECON 1179, 1200 1201.

Note: A B.A. in Environmental Studies can also be earned through the College of Agriculture, Health and Natural Resources. For a complete description of the major in that college, refer to the Environmental Studies description in the “College of Agriculture, Health and Natural Resources” section of this Catalog.

Provide proposed title and complete course catalog copy ARTH 3570 / AMST 3570. History and Theory of Digital Art Three credits. Prerequisite: Open to sophomores or higher. Examines the aesthetics and cultural impact of digital art in various modes including performance, online, and object production.
Reason for the course action The only change requested is the AMST crosslisting. The existing History and Theory of Digital Art is an interdisciplinary course that brings together materials from art history, digital media, media theory, literary criticism, and history, which is one reason for the American Studies cross-listing. It also provides students with a theoretical foundation and interpretive strategies for interpreting digital media, which is critical for work in contemporary-focused American Studies. Finally, though not stated in the title of the course, the syllabus readings, as implemented, deal primarily with the United States and the Americas as their geographic focus. Even if they did not, the course would still provide our students with what is deemed a crucial interpretative skill (the interpretation of digital media and digital sources).
Specify effect on other departments and overlap with existing courses None, since this will not affect the way in which the course is currently taught.
Please provide a brief description of course goals and learning objectives By the end of the course students will demonstrate a familiarity with and an understanding of various kinds of digital art production and consumption as well as various genres and arenas of cultural influence.
ARTH 3570 / AMST 3570 – History and Theory of Digital Art  Professor Kelly Dennis

Course Description
This upper-division art history course investigates the role played by digital and electronic technologies in art and art making and the attendant impact on received modes of art’s production and reception. Though attention will be given to historical precursors, focus will be on identifying new models for describing and analyzing digital art, including the viability of such categories as “representation” and “identification” in the face of popular modes of simulation and immersion. How might digital communication modes and technologies alter received ideas about autonomous and distinct artistic mediums? How does art that utilizes or produces forms that are alterable, copied, or obsoleted by hard- and soft-ware upgrades affect longstanding ideals about authenticity, and materiality? How is digital art to be conserved for future consumption and historicization? How do we understand the public sphere for digital art’s reception? Finally, how might artists maintain a critical stance while utilizing military, corporate, and consumer technologies to produce their art?

Students in this class will learn about:

• Histories of the computer and contested beliefs and ideologies surrounding its uses and cultural and social value;
• Electronic and digital art historical precedents;
• Histories of digital art as tool, medium, and practice;
• The ways that digital art and online curating generate and inform visual literacy;
• The roles played by digital art in representing race, class, gender, and national identity.

Outcomes
By the end of the course students will demonstrate a familiarity with and an understanding of various kinds of digital art production and consumption as well as various genres and arenas of cultural influence.

Readings
• New Media Art, Mark Tribe and Reena Jana (Taschen, 2006) Wiki Version [chapters will be specified but students should be sure to also click the relevant “Profiles” of artists mentioned in each chapter] [Search: Tribe and New Media Art—link will appear if it does not work here].
• Other reading links as indicated on the syllabus or available under Library Resources on the course HuskyCT site.

Requirements and Grading
Midterm exam 15%
Blog + Wiki 15%
Final exam 20%
Final Project + Oral Presentation 30%
Participation 20%

Participation + Attendance Policy: Your participation is essential to the success of this class. You should plan to ask and answer questions and make comments each day. Failure to attend class means you are not fulfilling your obligation to participate in discussion and thus, contribute to the overall learning experience of all. Course Wiki – Identify and define TWO key terms relevant to the history and theory of digital art and then begin to explore, expand, and define them, as well as provide relevant hyperlinks [NB: links to other websites support definitions and do not stand in for them; website plagiarism will not be tolerated!]. This is a collective-authored wiki project, which means you will be able to edit and add to other’s contributions and be subject to editing and revision yourself. Play nice.

Discussion Blog - Students are responsible for 200-300 word weekly posts on the assigned reading and artists investigated in class or independently and related to the week’s topics. At least 8 comments on other students’ posts are required over the course of the semester. Your posts should detail your responses and thoughts about the various essays, art works, artists, curators, events and discussions you encounter. Some of these will be specific assignments while others will be independent, self-generated blog entries on assigned reading of your choosing. Create at least two links from each entry of your blog posts to external websites of relevance. A reasonable level of academic decorum and etiquette is expected.

Examinations: The midterm and final examinations will consist of image essay analyses and short and long essay questions that test your comprehension of assigned reading, lecture, class discussions, and specific knowledge of works of art and their producers in social and historical context. Slide review images are available on the class website. Any student caught with a cell phone left “on” will be dismissed from the exam and given an F.

Final Project
Curate an online exhibition of digital art on the course website. Develop a research strategy by looking at the various online exhibition links and locating others. Locate 5 works of digital and/or Internet art and develop a uniquely designed web “exhibition” that has the following components:
1. A theme or subject, for example, GirlzOnly, Eracism, HackArt, VirtualBodies, etc., which you define and justify as the basis for an online exhibition.
2. 8-10 pp curatorial statement situating your exhibition within general developments in digital/Internet art as well as those of your chosen exhibition subject/theme. Be sure to emphasize and discuss the characteristics of selected works that justify their inclusion, e.g., visual, conceptual, interactive, historical, programmatic, etcetera, etcetera. At least half of your statement should be devoted to reviewing each of the works chosen for your exhibition. This statement can be creatively designed using web- or software of your choosing. At minimum, it should be a slide show on the course Flickr website. Warning: the professor does not provide technical assistance; experiment at your own risk but know that the results MUST be legible and posted by the assignment due date!
3. Figure Citation: Though your figures must be visible in your online exhibition, external links to each of the selected works (clicking on these links should open a new window; be sure your links are still active before the assignment due date!).
4. Bibliographic Citations: At least 8 references and links to online sources—essays, reviews, exhibitions, permalink to scholarly articles on JSTOR, ProjectMUSE and other databases) that you draw upon and cite in your curatorial statement (clicking on these links should also open a new window).

In addition to curating and creating this online exhibition and curatorial statement, you will also be making a 5-minute presentation of your research and present your online exhibition in class during the last two weeks of the semester. These presentations should be specific about your research project, process, and results, and should clearly articulate what your exhibition contributes to our understanding of digital and/or Internet art.

2018-42 AMST Revise major (guest: Chris Vials)

Proposal to Change a Major
Last revised: September 24, 2013

1. Date: December 27, 2017
2. Department or Program:  American Studies
3. Title of Major:  American Studies
4. Effective Date (semester, year):  Fall 2018
(Consult Registrar’s change catalog site to determine earliest possible effective date. If a later date is desired, indicate here.)
5. Nature of change:  Dramatic revision of the requirements

Existing Catalog Description of Major

The American Studies Program at the University of Connecticut provides students with the opportunity to gain a critical understanding of the American experience while allowing individual students to define what aspects of that experience they would like to explore. Although our required courses focus largely on the United States, the field is now understood as comprising the study of issues and subjects from throughout the Western Hemisphere.

Among the goals of the American Studies curriculum is to promote an awareness of complex cultural, political, and economic structures at the root of the social organizations that have existed throughout the history of what has come to be known as the “New World.” Other areas of concentration may include, for example, the ways in which literary, musical, and visual artists have articulated cultural concerns, our changing understandings of the geography and ecology of the Western Hemisphere, or issues of cultural and ethnic diversity.

Prerequisite

AMST 1201

Core Courses

15 credits (One course from 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 below):

6. One course from the following: AFRA/HIST 3564; AFRA/HIST/HRTS 3563; HIST 3502, 3504, 3510, 3516; HIST/WGSS 3561, 3562.
7. ENGL 2201 or 2203
8. POLS 2607 or 3602 or 3802 or 3817 or ECON 2102
9. One 2000-level or above course that deals with Latin America, Canada, or the Caribbean.
10. AMST/ENGL 3265W: Seminar in American Studies: 3 Credits (W). This seminar will provide an in-depth study of a historical period, event, or cultural movement from an interdisciplinary perspective. Students will produce a substantial essay on a topic approved by the instructor.

Track Requirement (Nine credits)

Students must choose a “Track” from the four American Studies tracks. They must take three 2000-level or above courses from within this track.

Track I: History, Culture, and Society

AFRA/ANTH 3152; AFRA/HDFS/WGSS 3042; ANTH 3026, 3027, 3902, 3904; ANTH 3041/LLAS 3241; AASI 3578/HIST 3530; HDFS 2001, HDFS 3442/LLAS 3250; HDFS 3240/SOCI 3459; HIST 3101W, 3502, 3504, 3510, 3520, 3522, 3540, 3542, 3551, 3554, 3555; 3570; HIST/AFRA 3564; HIST/AFRA/HRTS 3563; HIST/LLAS 3660W; HIST/URBN 3541; HIST/WGSS 3561, 3562; SOCI 2651, 3221, 3501, 3601, 3825; WGSS 2267, 3264, 3268
Track II: Literature and the Arts

AFRA/DRAM 3131; ARTH 3440, 3450; DRAM 4151; ENGL 2201, 2203, 2214, 3207/W, 3210, 3212, 3218, 3240, 3801W, 3803W

Track III: Political Science, Economics, and the Law

ANTH 3021, 3029, 3042; ARTH 3630, 3645; GEOG 4710; HIST 3607, 3608W, 3609, 3610, 3620, 3635, 3640, 3643; LLAS 3575, 4994W; POLS 3235; SPAN 3201, 3204, 3233, 3234, 3260, 3265, 3266

A number of these courses are cross-listed in the catalog, but in most cases they appear on this list only once. Many are offered as “W” courses, and some may have departmental prerequisites. Other courses, such as “Special Topics” courses, may be used to fulfill American Studies requirements with the approval of the Director of American Studies. (If possible, students should seek such permission before taking the course.) All courses must be taken for three credits.

The Core Courses may not be used to fulfill the 9-credit track requirement. A second core course from the same group, however, may be so used.

AMST/ENGL 3265W satisfies the Information Literacy Competency and Writing in the Major requirements.

Related Courses

12 Credits. Students will take four related courses. The approval of these courses as germane to the American Studies major will be left to the discretion of the advisor.

A minor in American Studies is described in the “Minors” section.

Proposed Catalog Description of Major

The American Studies Program at the University of Connecticut provides students with the opportunity to gain a critical understanding of the American experience while allowing individual students to define what aspects of that experience they would like to explore. Although our required courses focus largely on the United States, the field is now understood as comprising the study of issues and subjects from throughout the Western Hemisphere. The field also studies the United States in a global context by examining how other cultures have shaped this country and how this country has influenced the world.

Among the goals of the American Studies curriculum is to promote an awareness of complex cultural, political, and economic structures at the root of the social organizations that have existed throughout the history of what has come to be known as the “New World.” Other areas of concentration may include, for example, the ways in which literary, musical, and visual artists have articulated cultural concerns, our changing understandings of the geography and ecology of the Western Hemisphere, or issues of cultural and ethnic diversity.

Related Courses

12 Credits. Students will take four related courses. The approval of these courses as germane to the American Studies major will be left to the discretion of the advisor.

A minor in American Studies is described in the "Minors" section.

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS:

(d) Total Credits for the Major: 27 (9 courses, not including ‘Related Coursework’)  In fulfilling the Course Requirements below, a single course can be ‘double-dipped’ to fulfill 2 areas at once (but not triple-dipped). NOTE: Students who double-dip must reach their 27 credits for the major by taking any of the classes listed in the Course Requirements below.

(e) General Distribution Requirement I. In fulfilling the requirements for the American Studies degree, students must take 4 AMST-designated courses (AMST 1201 and AMST 3265 count toward this total)

(f) General Distribution requirement II. In fulfilling the requirements for the American Studies degree, students must take courses listed in 3 different departments, not including AMST. Courses cross-listed with AMST may count for this requirement, however (For example, AMST/ARTH 3440 counts as an Art History course).

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

With the permission of the Director of American Studies, a student may also satisfy these requirements with a course not listed here.

(9) Intro Course: AMST 1201

(9) Electives. One elective, selected from any of the courses above. Additions to these lists may be approved by the Director of American Studies.

Related Coursework:
Four courses related to American Studies, approved by the advisor on the final plan of study. Courses from the American Studies Course Requirements list can also be used to satisfy Related Coursework, so long as they have not been used to satisfy other requirements, and so long as they do not have an AMST designation.

Justification

1. Reasons for changing the major:
The old major largely pieced together classes from existing disciplines and exposed students to very little in the way of interdisciplinary, American Studies content in the space of one class. The new major, while continuing to draw on courses from departmentalized units, requires much more interdisciplinary content by mandating the AMST designation for a larger number of classes. To this end, a range of courses with the AMST designations have been added to the catalog: whereas before we only offered 2 undergraduate courses, we will soon be able to offer 18. Our new course requirements – grouped around particular themes rather than existing disciplines – reflect contemporary topics in the field while also encouraging students to think in terms of the interdiscipline of American Studies itself. On this note, the new major accommodates the transnational turn in the field.
All in all, the proposed changes bring American Studies instruction in line with American Studies research nationally and internationally while also making the major more distinctive and appealing to students.

2. Effects on students: Students will have a more intellectually rigorous major that better captures the diversity of the American experience and the global dimensions of U.S. politics and culture. Also, the new major will be even closer to a self-designed course of study than the old plan of study. Otherwise, it should have no other effects, particularly since the credit hours required within the major (27) will remain the same.

3. Effects on other departments: None

4. Effects on regional campuses:

Historically, the majority of American Studies majors have been enrolled at the regional campuses. While we have been more actively recruiting in Storrs, we have every intention of continuing to serve students at the regional campuses. To this end, this proposal has been shared with American Studies representatives at each of the regional campuses where we currently have majors (Avery Point, Hartford, Waterbury) to ensure that students at the regional campuses can still complete the major. We altered both our course lists and our requirements so that the major could still be completed at the regional campuses.

Plan of Study

If the proposed change modifies the requirements of the major, then attach a revised "Major Plan of Study" form to your submission email.

AMERICAN STUDIES MAJOR: PLAN OF STUDY

Effective Fall 2018

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS:

(a) Total Credits for the Major: 27 (9 courses, not including ‘Related Coursework’) In fulfilling the Course Requirements below, a single course can be ‘double-dipped’ to fulfill 2 areas at once (but not triple-dipped). NOTE: Students who double-dip must reach their 27 credits for the major by taking any of the classes listed in the Course Requirements below.
(b) General Distribution Requirement I. In fulfilling the requirements for the American Studies degree, students must take 4 AMST-designated courses (AMST 1201 and AMST 3265 count toward this total)

(c) General Distribution requirement II. In fulfilling the requirements for the American Studies degree, students must take courses listed in 3 different departments, not including AMST. Courses cross-listed with AMST may count for this requirement, however (For example, AMST/ARTH 3440 counts as an Art History course).

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:
With the permission of the Director of American Studies, a student may also satisfy these requirements with a course not listed here.

(1) Intro Course: AMST 1201

(2) American Studies Methods Requirement: AMST 3265W

(9) Electives. One elective, selected from any of the courses above. Additions to these lists may be approved by the Director of American Studies.

Related Coursework:
Four courses related to American Studies, approved by the advisor on the final plan of study. Courses from the American Studies Course Requirements list can also be used to satisfy Related Coursework, so long as they have not been used to satisfy other requirements, and so long as they do not have an AMST designation.

AMERICAN STUDIES MAJOR: PLAN OF STUDY
Effective Fall 2018

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS

(g) Total Credits for the Major: 27 (9 courses, not including ‘Related Coursework’). In fulfilling the Course Requirements below, a single course can be ‘double-dipped’ to fulfill 2 areas at once (but not triple-dipped). NOTE: Students who double-dip must reach their 27 credits for the major by taking any of the classes listed in the Course Requirements below.

2018-43  AMST  Revise minor (guest: Chris Vials)

Proposal to Change a Minor
Last revised: September 24, 2013

1. Date: December 31, 2017
2. Department or Program: American Studies
3. Title of Minor: American Studies Minor
4. Effective Date (semester, year): Fall 2018
(Consult Registrar’s change catalog site to determine earliest possible effective date. If a later date is desired, indicate here.)
5. Nature of change: An adjustment of terminology so that the minor reflects the new major. Also, a more brief overview of the minor.
Existing Catalog Description of Minor

This minor promotes an interdisciplinary understanding of the complex economic, political, and cultural structures at the root of the societies of the Western Hemisphere. Our studies range from the first immigrations across the land bridge from Siberia, to the colonization of the Americas by Europeans, to the present day. Students may also examine such issues as ethnicity, gender relations, and environmental awareness, and discuss how literary and visual artists have articulated contemporary cultural concerns. Students must complete fifteen credits, including:

- AMST 1201;
- An additional three credits of AMST coursework;
- Nine credits taken from any of the tracks listed in the American Studies major and/or courses approved by the director of American Studies.

Courses used to fulfill the student’s major field requirements and their related coursework for the major may also be used to fulfill the American Studies minor. To ensure focus, students must provide a brief rationale for their track and course choices.

Proposed Catalog Description of Minor

This minor promotes an interdisciplinary understanding of the complex economic, political, and cultural structures of the United States and its place in the world. Our studies range from the first immigrations across the land bridge from Siberia, to the colonization of the Americas by Europeans, to the present day. Students may also examine such issues as ethnicity, gender relations, and environmental awareness, and discuss how literary and visual artists have articulated contemporary cultural concerns.

Students must complete fifteen credits, including:

- AMST 1201;
- Six credits of courses with an AMST designation, at the 2000 level or above;
- Nine credits taken from any of the tracks listed in the American Studies major and/or courses approved by the director of American Studies;
- Nine credits taken from any of the courses listed under “Course Requirements” in the American Studies major and/or courses approved by the director of American Studies.

Courses used to fulfill the student’s major field requirements and their related coursework for the major may also be used to fulfill the American Studies minor. To ensure focus, students must provide a brief rationale for their course choices.

Justification

1. Reasons for changing the minor: The main substantive shift here is canceling the requirement for AMST 1201 (Intro to American Studies) and replacing it with a requirement of 6 credits in AMST-designated classes. The reason for this shift is to be compliant with new CLAS guidelines for minors. Also, there is a change of the word “tracks” to “courses” in the third bullet point. The old major was based around a system of three tracks which will be jettisoned in the new major in favor of a series of themed course requirements.

2. Effects on students: The change will eliminate confusion among students and advisors over the word “tracks.” Students will also have more flexibility in fulfilling the requirements of the minor. Otherwise, the basic structure of the minor is unchanged in the sense that 9 of its 15 credits can be satisfied through a very expansive list of courses.

3. Effects on other departments: None

4. Effects on regional campuses: None

5. Dates approved by Department Curriculum Committee: January 22, 2018
   Department Faculty: January 22, 2018

6. Name, Phone Number, and e-mail address of principal contact person: Chris Vials, Christopher.vials@uconn.edu; (413)-695-9252

Plan of Study
If the proposed change modifies the requirements of the Minor, then attach a revised "Minor Plan of Study" form to your submission email as a separate document. The plan of study should include the following information:

A. Near the top of the form:

NOTE: Completion of a minor requires that a student earn a C (2.0) or better in each of the required courses for that minor. A maximum of 3 credits towards the minor may be transfer credits of courses equivalent to University of Connecticut courses. Substitutions are not possible for required courses in a minor.

B. At the bottom of the form:

Name of Student: ______________________
I approve the above program for the Minor in <insert name> (signed) _________________________ Dept. of <insert name>
